BORAH REFUSES TO HELP HOOVER AS 'WET'

SENATOR ASSERTS REPEAL IS OBJECT OF CHICAGO PLANK

Chamber Startled by Repudiation of Platform.

DOUBT EXISTS HE HAS BOLTED

Idahoan Denies Having Plans to Lead Third Party in Election.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, will not support President Hoover for reelection on the Republican platform adopted in Chicago.

The Idaho statesman, premier orator of his party and President Hoover's most powerful supporter in 1928, announced his decision on the floor of the Senate late yesterday, after assailing the Chicago prohibition plank as a "generality" which actually calls for repeal.

When Senator James Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, asked Senator Borah whether he would support President Hoover on the platform adopted in Chicago, the "Lion of the Rockies" said:

"I will not."

Immediate Repercussions.

Borah's speech caused a furore. Two members of President Hoover's Cabinet—Postmaster General Walter Brown and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills—issued statements denying Borah's contention that they were "both openly and uncompromisingly for repeal."

And Senator Joe T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, who went into a tantrum in March a year ago when John J. Raskob offered his "home rule" liquor plan, last night urged the Democratic national convention to declare for submission of the question of repeal without attempting to commit members of the party to support repeal.

Word having gone out that Borah was to speak, the Senate galleries were crowded to the doors. When he concluded the report sped through the Capitol that Borah had "bolted."

Sulked But Never Bolted.

Whether Borah has in fact bolted depends on how that word is defined and intended. If it is meant to convey the thought that Borah has broken with Hoover, it is correct. If, however, it is meant to signify that Borah had deserted the Republican party, it is incorrect. Borah has never deserted; he has never actually been "off the reservation" in an election

NEW PLEAS VOICED ON FEDERAL RELIEF

(Associated Press.)

New demands for prompt Federal aid for the jobless were raised yesterday as the Senate pushed ahead with debate on the $2,000,000,000 unemployment relief bill sponsored by the Senate Democratic leadership.

The Senate acted on a number of minor amendments, moving toward the most controversial section which provides for a $500,000,000 Federal public works program to be financed by a bond issue. The administration senators are expected to oppose this feature.

In a hearing held by Senators La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, the legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor—Edward F. McGrady—asserted that "if Congress does not do something to meet this situation, next winter it will not be a cry to save the hungry, but it will be a cry to save the Government."

An estimate of 600,000 World War veterans unemployed was given by A. H. Milton, of Chicago, chairman of the national executive board of the bonus expeditionary force encamped here.

"We urge upon Congress," he said, "not to adjourn until some form of relief is enacted."

Among them were residents of Detroit, Chicago, New York and Baltimore, who testified to an increasing exhaustion of relief facilities.

MOBS IN CHILE ATTACK GUARD OF NEW JUNTA

DAVILA'S MEN DEFEAT ASSAULT ON ARSENAL

Uprising Is Called Worst Since 1931; Property Damage Is Heavy.

Santiago, Chile, June 20 (U.P.).—Rioting mobs protested against the new Socialist government of Chile tonight, storming the arsenal on the outskirts of Santiago and clashing repeatedly with carabineros.

Twenty-five persons were killed and 75 wounded.

Marines were understood to have been sent to Valparaiso. Machine gun patrols in the street of Santiago late tonight apparently had succeeded in restoring order.

The outbreak in the capital and in Valparaiso was the most serious since the overthrow of the dictatorial government of exiled Gen. Carlos Ibanez in 1931. The mob was repulsed at the arsenal.

The carabineros, acting under a decree of martial law, battled the rioters in both cities in defense of the junta headed by Carlos G. Davila, who was returned to power last week by a revolutionary coup which overthrew the short-lived government of Col. Marmaduke Grove.

Many Minor Casualties.

A group of 32 soldiers of the Buin Regiment were arrested tonight on charges of plotting against the new government.

Machine guns were mounted on the presidential palace, which was strongly guarded, indicating the government was prepared for stern measures to end the rioting. Iron shutters were put up on business houses, and American Ambassador William S. Culbertson requested the junta to provide greater protection for United States citiens and interests.

Senate Backs O'Connor As Shipping Board Head

Over the vigorous opposition of Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, the Senate last night confirmed the renomination of T. V. O'Connor to the Shipping Board, of which he is chairman.

The vote confirming O'Connor was 35 to 16.

Robinson Has Plank Favoring Submission

Proposal for Platform of Democrats Would Not Bind Party.

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—Convention captains of Gov. Roosevelt of New York are counting on 90 of the Empire State's 94 votes to carry him to the edge of the two-thirds necessary for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency on the first ballot.

James A. Farley, the governor's spokesman here, would not say this flatly, but he plainly indicated it as he talked with newspapermen, explaining how he expected a first-ballot victory.

"If you take 90 of the New York votes," said Farley, "and put them in the Roosevelt column you will see we only need 15 or 20 more."

Asked if he was counting on the 90 New York votes, Farley smiled and said: "Ask John F. Curry when he comes here—I think he will tell you." Curry is a Tammany leader and is due here Wednesday."

Alfred E. Smith, another of New York's most prominent sons, and

A Democratic platform favoring submission of a prohibition repeal amendment, but not attempting to pledge party members, was proposed last night by Senator Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate.

Robinson's plan was presented in a formal statement following a conference of his colleagues to discuss the platform problem at which the exchange of views indicated a strong sentiment for that kind of a plank.

"The plank in the Republican platform is intended to be ambiguous," the 1928 vice presidential candidate said. "Democrats in convention at Chicago should avoid this error and be frank.

"If a plank on the subject of prohibition should be incorporated, it should merely declare for submission of the question of repeal and should not attempt to commit members of the party to support repeal."

The platform conference was held

BALL AND 2 OTHERS ARE INDICTED AGAIN

Former Arlington Officials to Plead on Thursday; Amounts Raised.

Total shortages charged to the accounts of three former Arlington County officials took a leap upward late yesterday afternoon when a special grand jury returned indictments against E. Wade Ball, former county treasurer; William H. Duncan, former county clerk, and F. J. Hallock, former clerk to the county school board.

The indictments were to reinstate those which had been attacked by attorneys for Duncan on the ground that there were members of the April special grand jury who were not eligible to serve. But in addition to the $24,454.29 shortage charged to Ball and the $7,815 misappropriation laid at the doors of Duncan by the April jury, the present investigators boosted Ball's total to $89,754.29 and Duncan's to $79,026.34.

The additional indictments gave specific sums and dates of the alleged misappropriations and the added totals represented county funds. The

McAdoo Entered For Senate Race

Los Angeles, June 20 (A.P.).—William Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury in the Woodrow Wilson administration, was listed today as a candidate for United States senator from California with the filing of the first declaration by sponsors.

Mr. McAdoo, a delegate to the Democratic national convention in Chicago, said he was influenced in consenting to make the race in the Democratic primary by representations of party leaders during a recent trip through California.

McAdoo's return to active politics was called a "pillar of strength to the Democratic party in this State," by John P. Carter, Democratic leader. On the Republican side, Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, incumbent, filed declaration of candidacy for reelection.

Chicago Officials Off To Seek $110,000,000

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—Chicago and Cook County officials left today for Washington to seek some $110,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to fill the empty coffers of the local government. The city wants $81,500,000 for relief work and payment of salaries of teachers an employes.

Mayor Anton Cermak will go to Washington from New York to the Illinois representatives and senators in laying the petition before the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, led the county officials who seek $31,000,000 to meet similar obligations.

REPARATIONS SPLIT FRANCE AND BRITAIN

Herriot Says His Country Can Not Forgo Annuity Under Young Plan.

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 20 (A.P.).—A decisive battle was being fought out tonight in private negotiations by delegates to the Lausanne conference over the question whether war reparations should be cancelled in whole on only in part.

Premier Edouard Herriot, of France, squarely raised the issue by informing Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Chancellor Franz von Papen his government could not forego the entire 359,000,000 gold marks (approximately $89,000,000) annuity guaranteed for 37 years by the Young plan.

The viewpoints of the negotiators were so far apart it was decided to postpone indefinitely an open session of the conference which had been scheduled for tomorrow morning.

The Germans insisted that at that session they should be permitted to debate the feasibility of complete cancellation. The French demanded

Fort Backs G.O.P. Prohibition Plank

Hoover Backer Says It Is Step to Straight-Out Decision on Liquor.

(Associated Press.)

Former Representative Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, who will take the stump in favor of President Hoover's reelection, told newspapermen yesterday he favored the prohibition plank in the Republican platform since "a reaffirmation of the people's faith in prohibition is necessary for adequate enforcement and observance."

Fort, who was defeated in New Jersey on a straight prohibition stand, will make an address next Saturday in support of the President. He said he favored presenting an alternative to straight repeal when the prohibition question was submitted again to the people, in order to give "an at least arguable case."

"I believe," he asserted, "that on a straight repeal issue, with no alternative, the wets would be so overwhelmingly defeated they would say they had not been given a fair show. * * * With all this talk about repeal, people just don't feel that they have to observe the law. Public psychology will be different after a reaffirmation in favor of the law."

Banks in Kansas City Escape Tax on Checks

Kansas City, June 20 (A.P.).—The Government will have to balance its budget without whatever aid might have been expected from taxing counter checks in Kansas City.

Instead of counter checks, the Kansas City Clearing House Association said today, banks will use "receipts" for the handling of withdrawals. The association said the Treasury had held such "receipts" are not taxable.

FRANCE DROPS ARMS PLAN OF POLICE FORCE

Geneva, Switzerland, June 20 (A.P.).—France has temporarily abandoned her disarmament plan calling for an international police force directed by the League of Nations, it was learned today as American, British and French representatives continued their private negotiations aimed at achieving some concrete result from the stalemated disarmament conference.

The three-cornered discussions, initiated yesterday, will be continued tomorrow.

In their sessions today the conferees succeeded in reaching an agreement which added the subjects of bacteriological and chemical warfare to the matters to be considered in these private discussions.

Presented in February.

The French plan for an international police force, to which each nation would contribute men and material, was presented dramatically when the conference was getting under way last February.

Now Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, and his colleagues have made it clear that their government no longer considers it possible to obtain international approval of the project. The police force scheme was advanced when Pierre Laval was premier of France, a post now held by Edouard Herriot.

Two Sessions Are Held.

The American, French and British negotiators had two sessions today. Senator Claude A. Swanson, Hugh R. Wilson and Norman H. Davis were the American representatives at the morning meeting, and in the after-

Nashville, Tenn., June 20 (A.P.).—Trial of Rogers Caldwell, former investment banker, on charges of receiving deposits in an insolvent bank, was halted in circuit court today by Attorney General Richard M. Atkinson, who said he was unable to obtain sufficient evidence for prosecution.

The prosecutor entered a plea of nolle prosequi and Judge Charles Gilbert said he would allow him a period extending to next September 19 to take further action in the case.

PARTY LINES FALL AS HOOVER'S PLAN WINS ACCEPTANCE

M'DUFFIE CHANGES STAND; $1,000 EXEMPTION IS DECIDED

Saving of Additional $100,000,000 Expected to Result; Partial Conference Report Accepted; Senate to Take Action Today.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The House yesterday voted to apply the five-day week principle to government.

Administration forces triumphed, 326 to 45, in a final showdown on the President's payless furlough plan, revised and extended by House economy conferees.

The vote came after members decisively defeated the Democratic plan for horizontal 10 per cent pay cuts. Party lines fell in the final ballot, as salary slash advocates climbed on the furlough bandwagon.

Voting with them was Representative John McDuffie, House economy chairman, proponent of pay cuts and arch enemy of furloughs. Before he switched he wrote into the amendment a $1,000 exemption, as against $1,200 carried in the Senate bill.

Increase of $100,000,000.

Earlier the House by a vote of 219 to 36 adopted the partial conference report on the economy measure, carrying approximately $50,000,000 in savings. Estimates are that the revamped furlough plan will increase these economies by $100,000,000.

Senate economy conferees this morning briefly will review the House action, preliminary to submitting both the conference report and the House furlough amendment to the Senate this afternoon.

Senator Wesley L. Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the Senate conferees, and Senator George H. Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, who sponsored payless furloughs in the Senate, predicted early acceptance of the measure.

As result of the House action, Government employes earning salaries in excess of $1,000 beginning next month may be subject to compulsory one-month furloughs spread out over the period of a year. All leaves with pay will be canceled. Sick leaves will be left undisturbed.

Graduated Pay-Cut Scale.

Representative McDuffie, who himself offered the amendment, first wrote into the plan a graduated pay-cut scale for those who might be exempted from furloughs because their services were considered "indispensable."

Such workers drawing between $1,000 and $10,000 would have to take an 8.3 per cent salary slash; between $10,000 and $12,000, a 10 per cent cut; between $12,000 and $15,000, a 12 per cent cut; between $15,000 and $20,000, 15 per cent, and over $20,000, 20 per cent.

Under the plan as approved, senators and representatives would be cut 10 per cent; the Vice President and Speaker of the House, 15 per cent. Washington police and firemen, and District school teachers exempted from furloughs, would suffer 8.3 per cent slashes in pay.

Futile efforts to block agreement on the conference report, containing such controversial items as preferential discharge of married workers where husband and wife are in Federal service; permanent provision for

BONUS ARMY DIVIDED OVER "THIRD" PARTY

Commander in Chief Repudiates Also Wet Stand of Committee.

Open controversy struck the Bonus Expeditionary Forces last night when the executive committee and Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters repudiated the declarations of the legislative committee against the eighteenth amendment and in favor of what would amount to a third political party.

Rather than commit the army to any policy other than what directly affects the bonus, Commander in Chief Waters declared the question of a third party "is a dangerous thing," in that it might alienate the support received from both Democrats and Republicans in the fight for the bonus.

Fear that those who are trying to demoralize the bonus army might attempt to kidnap or "frame" him was expressed yesterday by Waters. He said he had reason to believe that there would be an attempt made to discredit him in the eyes of the men. To offset this he has detailed a man to be with him at all times.

Earlier Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, chief of police, had declared Congress should do "something" for the bonus marchers, who intend to "dig in" in the Capital until favorable action is had on the bonus legislation.

The executive committee elected H.

Engine's Explosion Kills 2 on B. & O.

Engineer and Fireman of Capitol Limited Victims.

Pittsburgh, June 20 (A.P.).—The Allison Park police reported tonight that the engineer and fireman of the Capitol Limited, Baltimore & Ohio train, were killed when the locomotive boiler blew up near Allison Park.

The dead are O. B. Smith, engineer, and C. G. Scott, fireman, both of Willard, Ohio.

The train was en route from New York to Chicago. Details of the explosion were not immediately available.

The train was not wrecked. The engine and one car were thrown from the track, but the rest of the cars remained on the rails.

Roads Leading Into Capital Watched for Dynamite Car

Police of Four States and District Are on Lookout for Maroon-Colored Automobile; "Tip" Is Relayed From New York.

A maroon-colored coupe, reputedly loaded with dynamite, was the object last night of an intensive police search in four States and the District of Columbia. Authorities of jurisdictions between Washington and New York were notified to be on the alert for the car and the two men supposed to be in it.

In Washington, motorcycle men and a police radio car were detailed to watch all roads leading from Maryland into the District. Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, warned his men to "exercise great care in making arrests."

The "tip" that the car was on its way to Washington is supposed to have been relayed to Secret Service men here by agents in New York.

The following message was put on the teletype system of the Maryland State police early last night, and went to Baltimore police headquarters:

"Lieut. Cox, of the Washington Police Department, says United States Secret Service, in Washington, has been notified by a New York agent that two men left New York at 1:10 p. m. driving a maroon-colored car, make not known. Car is believed to be loaded with gunpowder.

Gen. Glassford issued the following instructions to Washington police: "To all lieutenants. Cover all roads leading from Maryland and instruct members of your command to watch out for a maroon-colored coupe, make unknown. It is occupied by two white men. This car is carrying some heavy explosives. Exercise great care in making arrests. If the car is located without occupants, notify the detective bureau and keep the car under surveillance."

Philadelphia and New Jersey police agencies were also notified to be on the lookout for the car.

All knowledge of the report was denied last night by W. H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, which is intrusted with guarding the White House and the President. He said he had asked for no special precautions by police.

William Fox Quits Capital Despite Senate's Subpena

Committee Refuses to Release Former Film and Theater Magnate in Stock Short-Selling Inquiry, But Tacitly Permits Him to Seek Rest.

(Associated Press.)

William Fox, who made millions in the movie and theater business, quietly checked out at his hotel yesterday and was believed to have returned to New York, although still under subpena to testify in the Senate stock market investigation concerning his financial operations.

The former head of the Fox Film and Fox Theater Corporation spent virtually all of his five days in Washington in a hotel room, sending word each morning to the Senate banking committee that he was too ill to testify. Doctors told the committee any severe nervous strain might endanger his health or life.

During Mr. Fox's absence, the committee's counsel charged the theatrical man with participating in a short-selling pool in stock of one of his own corporations in 1929 and accepting payment in a check made out to another to keep the transaction secret.

Mr. Fox sent a representative yesterday to Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, asking that he be released from subpena. The committee refused to do so, but took no action on a request that Mr. Fox be permitted to return to New York to recuperate. It was indicated this was tantamount to permitting Mr. Fox to return to his home while remaining under subpena. Mr. Fox was described by two physicians as suffering from diabetes. He came here by automobile from New York last Wednesday night.

Chairman Norbeck remarked, smiling, that "if he took a motor trip to New York, the committee feels that he was sufficiently well to testify."

Committee members were described as feeling, however, that the case is already in the record as the result of voluminous testimony by William A. Gray, committee counsel, and other witnesses.

The investigation is to be resumed Thursday, with testimony from persons who have lost money as a result of stock market operations.

MARTIN IS LEADING FOUR IN MAINE VOTE

Portland, Me., June 20 (A.P.).—State Senate President Burleigh Martin, of Augusta, had a slight lead over his four opponents for the Republican nomination for governor in Maine—which is generally tantamount to election—as scattered returns drifted in from over the State tonight.

With only 97 out of the 632 precincts reported two hours after the polls closed, Martin had 3,781 votes. Former State Senator Frank W. Carlton, of Bath, was next in line with 2,167, while Lewis O. Barrows, of Newport, member of the governor's council, held third place with 2,054. Alfred K. Ames, retired lumberman of Machias, had 1,857, while State Senator Arthur G. Spear, of Portland, had received only 370.

In the Democratic primary, F. Harold Bubord, of Waterville, was leading with 575; Louis J. Brann, of Lewiston, had second place with 446; Paul C. Thurston, of Bethel, was a close third with 436, and Charles M. Richardson, of Rockland, had 207. James B. Perkins, of Booth Bay Harbor, had 161.

A long ballot—carrying more names for the gubernatorial and congressional races than any year since the adoption of the primary law a score of years ago—made counting slow.

Former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, of Dexter, and Clarence C. Stetson, of Houlton, chairman of the Maine Development Commission, State publicity organization, were battling for the Republican nomination to Congress in the Third District. The other three contestants, including Bernard Archibald, of Houlton, who withdrew a week ago, were far behind.

With 26 out of 274 precincts reported the count showed Brewster, 695; Stetson, 553. Former Mayor John G. Utterback, of Bangor, held a commanding lead in the five-cornered contest for the Democratic nomination in the same district.

In the only straight out-and-out "wet-dry" fight, Representative Carroll Beedy, of Portland, a dry, had a substantial lead over Edward E. Chase, Cape Elizabeth repealist, in the First Congressional District. Seven out of 145 precincts gave Beedy, 731; Chase, 339.

Brown Leading Minnesota Gubernatorial Primary

St. Paul, June 21 (A.P.).—Returns from 122 of 3,715 precincts in Minnesota, give, for governor: Republican, Brown, 10,619; Ellsworth, 3,063.

ROBINSON PROPOSES SUBMISSION PLANK

at the office of Senator Hull (Democrat), Tennessee, who has been mentioned as chairman of the resolutions committee at Chicago.

Others who attended the conference included Senators Walsh, of Montana; George, of Georgia; Pittman, of Nevada; Dill, of Washington; Harrison, of Mississippi; Byrnes, of South Carolina; Bankhead and Black, of Alabama.

No decisions were made, participants said, but another meeting was called for today.

In addition to the prohibition plank, the group discussed economic declarations touching on the depression, the tariff and silver.

It was proposed that the party should shape its economic plank around the Democratic legislative record in Congress. There was general sentiment for a declaration in favor of reciprocal tariff treaties to lower trade barriers, and some discussion of a plank favoring an international silver conference to be called by the United States.

On the prohibition question, Democratic senators were giving considerable attention to a plank drafted by Dill, long a Roosevelt supporter, who is in close touch with the New York governor.

It would merely declare in a few words for submission of an amendment for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, without suggesting a substitute or attempting to pledge the party.

Highlights of Borah's Attack on '32 Platform

(Associated Press.)

Here are some of the high spots in the Senate speech of Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, on the Republican platform:

"The Republican campaign will not be fought around, or upon, the singular document which came from that convention."

"The realities of the campaign will cause this platform to be shoved aside as wholly inadequate and wholly unresponsive to the necessities and demands of the people."

"A quietus can not be put upon this question (prohibition) by adopting resolutions in political conventions."

"We will go back to the people who will decide this question regardless of party lines."

"Those who voted for the plank did so to a large extent as sheer political expediency."

"It must be clear to any one the convention was overwhelmingly for the repeal."

"What is there left of the eighteenth amendment after you permit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor throughout the United States?"

"How are you going to control the method and mode of sale after we once concede that the sale may take place?"

"Once we restore the liquor to the avenues of legal trade—the National Government has surrendered its power to control it."

"I openly and avowedly reject this provision of the platform, and say now that I shall not be bound by it for a single moment."

BORAH WON'T BACK HOOVER AS 'WET'

campaign. He has sulked, maybe, but he has never bolted.

Nor has he any intention of bolting now. Asked after his speech yesterday whether he planned to lead or join in a third party movement, the senator said:

Questioned as to whether he would actually take the stump against the President, Borah said that he had "no plans laid."

Plank Allows Evasion.

Some political observers saw in Borah's blast an attempt to force President Hoover to take a dry stand in the speech he will make in August accepting the nomination.

The Chicago prohibition plank—or the Hoover-Garfield plank, as many call it—contains a paragraph which gives both wet and dry politicians an "out."

After pointing out that prohibition is not a partisan political question, the plank says:

"Members of the Republican party hold different opinions with respect to it, and no public official or member of the party should be pledged or forced to choose between his party affiliations and his honest convictions upon this question."

In Chicago this paragraph was regarded as a sop to Borah, who previously announced that he would repudiate a wet or moist plank. It also was looked upon as a convenient escape for President Hoover if he wished to reiterate his statement of 1928 that prohibition was an "experiment noble in motive."

Borah Careful of Words.

When Borah was asked yesterday whether he would support President Hoover if the latter, in his acceptance speech, repudiated the prohibition plank, he replied:

"Well, I don't know; but if he did, and if I could find any way to conscientiously support him, I might."

In saying that he would not support President Hoover, Borah was careful to say that he would not support him on the platform adopted in Chicago. He had taken his seat after a speech limited to a denunciation of the platform when Senator Lewis arose to interrogate him.

Lewis recalled that in 1928 Borah "did much to make possible the election" of President Hoover by telling the voters that he was opposed to the nullification of the eighteenth amendment. He recalled further that Borah had convinced the voters that Mr. Hoover was "for the eighteenth amendment in its complete fulfillment and that we who were opposing the application of it were nullifiers of the Constitution."

Lewis' Question and Reply.

Lewis then propounded this question:

"I should like to ask my able friend from Idaho now, since he then supported the candidate who is now President on the theory that he was the supporter of the eighteenth amendment, and opposed the Democratic candidate on the ground that he was a nullifier of the Constitution—I ask my eminent friend how he stands now, since he has discovered that the platform of the Republican party now works the nullification of the Constitution, disposes of the eighteenth amendment, and practically removes the Federal Constitution from the people by submitting it to the States.

"I ask my able friend if he will now support President Hoover as the advocate of the eighteenth amendment, or does he support him as the nullifier of the Constitution?"

"I understand the senator asked whether I would support the President on this platform?" Borah said.

"Yes," agreed Lewis.

"I will not," said Borah.

Holds Repealists in Majority.

At the outset of his speech, Borah said that it was clear that a great majority in the recent Chicago convention were for repeal. He arrived at this by saying that when 204 delegates were eliminated who came from Democratic States that would give no votes for the Republican nominee in 1932 and send no Republican senators or representatives here to shape legislation or propose constitutional amendments, "you have an overwhelming majority for repeal." He added that there were 300 or more Federal officials who sat as delegates in the Chicago convention and who did not vote their convictions but rather for political expediency.

"The two who had most to do with the drafting the plank," Borah said, "were two members of the Cabinet, both of whom are openly and uncompromisingly for repeal."

He said he meant Postmaster General Brown and Secretary Mills.

Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), of Ohio, interrupted to say:

Holds Brown "For Repeal."

The Idaho senator said that he had talked to Brown a month ago and would show that he was for repeal.

When told last night that Brown had denied telling him he favored repeal, Borah said:

"That is not true. I shal have more to say about it tomorrow."

In his speech, Borah said that Secretary Mills had most to do with shaping the Chicago plank, and that he "has been an open advocate of repeal for years."

"If," continued Borah, "the Republican party's voice was heard in that Chicago convention and spoke the sentiments of the Republican party, then the Republican party is for naked repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and when I say naked repeal, I mean repeal without any substitute being offered.

Borah Blames Expediency.

"Then the question arises, if that is true, why did they not declare for open naked repeal of the eighteenth amendment? In my opinion it is perfectly fair and just to say that those who voted for the plank as it was adopted, as it finally became a part of the platform, did so to a large extent as sheer political expediency.

"It was deemed unwise in this campaign to declare openly for repeal notwithstanding the fact that many who voted for the plank believed in that proposition. It was not thought that it was sufficiently wise as party maneuvering to declare openly for taking the eighteenth amendment out of the Constitution."

Again repeating his argument, Borah asserted:

"And just as soon as the campaign is over, the reasons for placing that plank in the platform will have disappeared and the party, in my judgment, will stand unalterably for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

To Borah's mind other planks in the platform may be "vague, obscure and contradictory" but not the prohibition plank.

By way of illustrating his contention Borah took up three specific points of the eighteenth amendment and compared them with points in the party's new platform. The heart of the eighteenth amendment, he said, is the prohibition of manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor. The heart of the Republican plank, he added, is permitting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor. This, he argues, would result in complete repeal of the prohibition amendment.

Again the Idaho dry said the eighteenth amendment prohibits action on the part of a State, while the Republican plank would permit 48 different systems in the United States if the States desired it.

"So, having permitted the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquor and having referred the matter back to the State to deal with it as they see fit," he said, "there would be absolutely nothing left of the eighteenth amendment."

Means Only Repeal.

Carrying his contention further, Borah said the prohibition amendment establishes a uniform, unified policy throughout the country, while the substitute would grant that power to each State.

"So I say, interpret it as you may, the very basic principle of the eighteenth amendment would be removed by the substitute proposed in the platform," he said, "and I say there can be no doubt that this platform is for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. It never could have gone through the convention if it had not been."

As to the rest of the planks adopted at Chicago, Borah contends, Democrats will in all probability incorporate them in their own platform. The senator professes to see in the party's prohibition declaration a similarity to the "home rule" plan advocated a year ago last March by the Democratic national chairman, John J. Raskob. Borah contended the Raskob plan is the only alternative to absolute repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"To my mind," he continued, "the Raskob plan or the party plan if it incorporates the Raskob plan is nothing but legalized secession. It destroys the uniformity of the Constitution. It is a constitutional monstrosity."

Borah said still another important part of the Republican plank is that part promising protection to dry States. He said he does not know how it can be done. He added that the eighteenth amendment would never have been proposed had it not been for the "brazen, corrupt defiance of the laws of the dry States by the liquor interests outside of the law."

"Nothing But Generality."

Borah said he had been informed that the resolutions committee at Chicago held the view that when the eighteenth amendment was repealed the Webb-Kenyon act would again become operative and that it would be sufficient protection for dry States. He contended, however, that in his judgment the Webb-Kenyon act is very slight protection to the dry States. He pointed out that it had been declared unconstitutional by the Attorney General and was vetoed by the President on the same ground, although the Supreme Court, by divided vote, finally held it constitutional.

He asserted that there never had been any such thing in this country as local self-government, home rule, or State control with respect to the liquor traffic "except in name."

The Republican party, according to Borah, is under obligation to be specific in informing the American people just how it intends to try to protect dry States. The plank, he said, is nothing but a generality.

"And I venture to say," he continued, "that the American people will not be satisfied until they have something specific as to how the dry States are to be protected."

"Why," he said, "we could not put enough men in New York City or Chicago to control the method of drinking it, or where they could drink it, or how they could drink it, after we make it legal that it can be sold. Once we restore the liquor to the avenues of legal trade that men may manufacture it, that they may sell it, that they may transport it, the National Government has surrendered its power to control. There is only one way to control it after that, and that is by the people of the respective States."

Borah fails to see how it can be possible to avoid the return of the saloon once liquor is legalized.

Again he assailed the verbiage of the platform, particularly emphasizing the paragraph "such an amendment should be promptly submitted to the States by Congress."

Nobody, he said, can draw that amendment. No ten men would agree on the benefits and losses under the eighteenth amendment, he declared. He assailed it as a generality.

Party's Stand Conceded.

"It may have its place in the campaign," he said, "but when we come to formulate that amendment here it will be utterly no guide whatever."

"I think the most striking feature of this plank," he said, "is that we can not detect from any reading or any study of it where the Republican party stands on this question. We can not detect whether it thinks the eighteenth amendment was wise or unwise. We can not detect whether it thinks the people would be benefited or injured by its repeal. We can not determine any guide whatever from it, for the American in voting in this campaign.

"So I say that today a quietus can not be put upon this question by adopting resolutions in a political convention. We will go back to the people and decide this question regardless of party lines, and we will see whether there is a desire to vote it up or vote it down.

"How I shall vote and under what circumstances I shall vote belongs exclusively to me under my oath, and I openly and avowedly reject this provision of the platform and say now that I shall not be bound by it for a single moment."

Senator Hastings "Disturbed."

Senator Daniel O. Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, said he was "disturbed" that Senator Borah was in doubt about the meaning of the prohibition plank. The other senators laughed.

"A modification such as is proposed," Hastings said, "intends that the Federal Government will still have some control.

"I say that the Republican party positively and definitely placed itself against repeal and put the Federal Government in the position of attempting to control this question.

"I don't think the majority of this convention was for repeal at all. I think the senator from Idaho is wrong when he says that Secretary Mills was for repeal at the convention."

Mills and Brown Answer Borah on Dry Law Stands

Secretary of the Treasury Mills issued the following statement:

I am informed that in the course of his discussion of the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican convention Senator Borah stated that for the last six years I had been in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Since the senator has reefrred to my position, I feel called upon to make a brief statement of my personal views. The senator has evidently misunderstood my position. While I have not been an advocate of the eighteenth amendment, I have not believed that mere repeal is the solution. On the contrary, I have become more and more convinced that the true remedy is to be found in modifying the eighteenth amendment so as to prevent a return of the conditions which existed prior to the eighteenth amendment, and at the same time stamp out the undeniable evils that exist today.

As I stated to the convention, there are two extreme points of view. On the one hand, there are those who would retain the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law unamended. This, as I understand it, is the position of Senator Borah. At the other extreme, there are those who would repeal the eighteenth amendment without substituting anything therefor. This, as I understand it, is the position of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

I do not believe that the American people should be limited to the choice of either retaining the existing system or of returning to all of the evils of the liquor traffic. I do not believe that the American people should be limited in their choice to the speakeasy or the saloon.

American statesmanship should be equal to the task of developing a new system which will preserve us from the evils which existed under unlimited State control, and at the same time free us from the grievous difficulties which have arisen under an inflexible prohibitory provision embodied in the Federal Constitution. The plank adopted by the Republican national convention lays down the broad principles upon which such a solution can be based.

In the first place, it provides correction for the two main weaknesses of the present system; that is, its inflexibility and its departure from one of the fundamental principles of American form of government, namely, the right of local initiative and determination carrying with it a very definite sense of local responsibility. In the second place, it would provide protection for those States electing to remain dry. And, third, it would retain in the Federal Government power adequate to prevent the return of the saloon and its attendant evils in those States whose citizens determine to permit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages.

It is said that the plank is indefinite. Quite the contrary. Its important provisions are set out in clear and unambiguous language. What are they?

First: Submission by the Congress to the people through State conventions duly elected by the people of a new amendment modifying the eighteenth amendment.

Second: The proposed amendment to allow States to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine subject to the specified powers reserved in the Federal Government.

Third: Reservation in the Federal Government of the power to protect those States where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses.

The broad principles here laid down may be summarized in one sentence—returning to the States initiative, determination and responsibility, and retention in the Federal Government of sufficient power to attain two specifically named objectives.

Some gentlemen apparently would have had us go further and submit a proposed constitutional amendment and even a statute carrying out its provisions. But the national convention was adopting a party platform, or declaration of principles. The convention was neither a constitutional convention nor a legislative body. It was not charged with any such duty. It is just as unreasonable to demand that this proposal be written into the platform in the form of an amendment or bill as it would be to claim that when a Republican platform declares in favor of the correction of certain abuses in our banking practices is should present the exact language of the statutes whereby those abuses are to be corrected.

When the time comes, formulating the new amendment may give rise to differences of opinion as to how best to apply these principles. But I am sure that the Congress can write a constitutional amendment which will restore determination and a sense of responsibility to the States and retain in the Congress power to enact legislation making available Federal authority for the protection of the dry States and preventing the return of the saloon.

Colored Democrats Hear Hoover Called 'Lily White'

A mass meeting of colored Democrats, under auspices of the Victor Fund Army, was held last night at the Pythian Hall, Twelfth and U streets northwest, the principal addresses being made by Dean Kelly Miller, of Howard University, and Representative Samuel B. Pettengill, of Indiana. The purpose of the meeting, as announced by Mack D. Rowe, was to help swell the fund of $1,500,000 for the Democratic campaign.

Dean Miller described President Hoover as a "dyed-in-the-wool lily-white, and the master mind of lily-whiteism," which he analyzed as the brand of Southern Republicanism identical with that of Southern Democratic sentiment as regards the Negro in politics. The Democratic party in the North he described as "every whit as favorable to the Negro as the Republican party."

With reference to the Negro plank in the Republican platform, which pledges the party to "maintain" equal rights for the Negro, he suggested the interpretation of that plank to mean that the party would maintain such rights "in the same negative way as it has done under Taft, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover," and advocated that the Negro follow such men as may be calculated to "obtain" such rights for him.

"The National Association for Advancement of Colored People," he said, "made a great fight in getting the Negro the right to vote in Democratic primaries in Texas. It should now make the fight to have the Negro admitted to Republican conventions in Texas." He also scored the Republican party for "its disgraceful straddle of the great moral issue of prohibition."

Representative Pettengill advocated Jeffersonian democracy as good for the Negro as for the white man, and called upon Negro voters of America to give the Democratic party a chance to show what it can do for them.

Roosevelt Imparts Ideas on Platform

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 20 (U.P.).—A platform for the Democratic party was discussed today by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and A. Mitchell Palmer, a delegate to the national convention from the District of Columbia, in a yacht cabin during the Poughkeepsie regatta.

The governor and Palmer, who was Attorney General during the administration of Woodrow Wilson, talked at length on the platform that the Roosevelt forces will insist on at the ensuing Democratic national convention in Chicago.

Coatless, the governor sat at a table and in long hand wrote out for Palmer his views on various phases of the proposed platform. It was considered likely that the former Attorney General would convey the governor's wishes to the Roosevelt forces already in Chicago.

ROOSEVELT COUNTS 90 NEW YORK VOTES

William G. McAdoo, of California, also are due here Wednesday morning to wage the fight against Roosevelt, the leader today, in number of delegates for the hotly disputed presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, without apparent opposition the Roosevelt machine proceeded today in taking command of the convention organization, putting up J. Bruce Kremer, of Montana, as chairman of the rules committee. With a fight centering around the two-thirds rule for nomination, the rules committee and the permanent chairmanship have become key positions in the convention to open a week from today.

Farley significantly said today he would not be ready to announce the position of the Roosevelt forces on the retention of the old two-thirds rule until late in the week.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, and the choice of Alfred E. Smith and Gov. Ritchie of Maryland for permanent chairman, said that if the two-thirds rule is once adopted by the convention it would take a two-thirds vote to suspend it.

While Shouse is going down the line in the fight for the chairmanship against Senator Walsh, of Montana, who has been advanced by the Roosevelt forces, he conceded today that Roosevelt can take control of the convention organization if the majority of State and Territorial delegations now in line for the governor agree to it.

The announcement in Washington that Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, would not support President Hoover in this campaign created a stir in the Democratic ranks here. There was speculation over a third party, which some friends of Roosevelt have threatened if he is not nominated.

Word from the Capital that Senator Hull, of Tennessee, was conferring with Roosevelt friends in the Senate on platform declarations added strength to reports that he would be chairman of the resolutions committee, but there was still some doubt at Roosevelt headquarters here whether Mr. Hull would take the post.

Robert B. Ennis, campaign manager for Ritchie, announced the Maryland Governor and delegation would arrive here Friday instead of Saturday, to get ready for the opening Monday.

PROHIBITION PLANK DEFENDED BY BURKE

General Counsel of G. O. P. Declares It Is Fair to Both Sides.

Pittsburgh, June 20 (A.P.).—James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican national committee, tonight defended the prohibition plank adopted by the national convention in Chicago.

"The plank is fair to both wets and drys," Burke asserted, "because the major principles of the prohibitionists are preserved; the major demands of the antiprohibitionists are met."

Burke, who participated in the dramatic debate which preceded adoption of the plank, said that upon his arrival from Chicago today he found hundreds of letters on his desk, asking for interpretation of the plank.

"And I was prompted to answer immediately by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's Sunday criticism of the plank," the white-haired lawyer added with a smile.

"We are now dealing with the question of getting the eighteenth amendment out of the Constitution and inserting in its place the best substitute that can be devised to deal with the problem which is vexing millions of Americans, who wish it sensibly solved as soon as possible in order that it may be removed from the atmosphere of intemperate discussion.

What Wets Have Won.

"Now, since many so-called 'wets' seem to be dissatisfied with the Republican platform, let us face the facts squarely.

"What have they been demanding for the past six years?

"First—That they be given a chance to determine by their votes whether the eighteenth amendment shall continue in force, or whether it shall be repealed and forever taken out of the Constitution.

"Second—That they shall be permitted to express their wishes through State constitutional conventions and not through State Legislatures. They have felt that as Legislatures are elected on a multiplicity of issues, throughout the country, the prohibition question might be confused with or subordinated to other questions, and thus a clear-cut verdict prevented.

"Furthermore, they have felt that if the matter were to be submitted to State conventions with no other questions before them, the answer must be definite one way or the other.

"This seemed to be a fair demand, although many prohibitionists opposed it.

People Assured of Vote.

"The platform grants both these demands in the plainest, English. Consequently, if we triumph in November the people are assured of an opportunity to vote on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, through the medium of State conventions free from all other issues. * * *

"Ardent prohibitionists struggled at Chicago to give Congress the right to prohibit as well as regulate the liquor traffic throughout the country.

"The more moderate school of thought declined to grant Congress the power to prohibit, declaring that power belonged to the States alone. At the same time they believed that the logical thing to do was to lodge in Congress the power to provide a general regulation of the traffic which would be uniform throughout the country, rather than have from 4 to 48 conflicting liquor laws agitating the country, the States to regulate the details.

Drys' Contentions Granted.

"Therefore, the platform gave Congress the power to regulate but denied it the power to prohibit.

"Thus the three great principles demanded by the so-called 'wets' have been granted.

"On the other hand two outstanding principles for which the most ardent prohibitionists stand are not denied them:

"First—The right of any State to continue prohibition within its own borders by the vote of its own people.

"Second—The right of all prohibition States to the protection of the Federal Government from outside shipments into dry States and other kindred abuses.

"And finally, the 'drys' have the same right as the 'wets' to vote on the question as to whether present conditions are to be continued or terminated. No fair-minded American will deny either side this right."

PRESIDENT TOO BUSY TO TALK TO SANDERS

New G.O.P. Chairman Pays His Respects; Will Close Capital Offices.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday met for the first time since the Chicago convention with Everett Sanders, whom he has charged with directing the management of his reelection, but what had been forecast as a conference of wide political importance lasted only a few seconds.

The new chairman of the Republican national committee reported he had found Mr. Hoover "engrossed with his governmental duties" and had only paid his respects. The President previously had served notice of a business-before-politics attitude.

Saying he had not had time to form plans for the campaign, Mr. Sanders reported upon leaving the White House that he hoped to confer with the President during his stay here to close the Republican national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Hoover's apparent disinclination to talk politics with Chairman Sanders followed his recent statement that he would "not take part in the forthcoming campaign, as my undivided attention must be given to the duties of my office."

Joseph Scott, Los Angeles lawyer, who nominated Mr. Hoover for reelection at Chicago last Thursday, was an overnight guest at the White House and talked with the President yesterday morning. Mr. Scott left the Capital for Los Angeles late yesterday.

The President had lunch with Walter E. Edge, American Ambassador to France, who helped frame the prohibition plank. Representative Snell, chairman of the convention, said the President, after a discussion of the legislative situation, had congratulated him on his Chicago work.

Senator Hastings (Republican), of Delaware, also called at the White House, saying he had offered his belated congratulations. The President was busy with governmental affairs during most of the day.

Mr. Sanders said he expected to have the Republican headquarters here closed down and reopened in Chicago within two or three weeks. Eastern headquarters, he said, will be opened in New York.

'Mother' of Bonus Army Will Wed 'Color Guard'

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Marie Ewing, of Portland, Oreg., self-styled "mother of the bonus expeditionary forces," turned up at the city hall today with enough nickels and dimes to purchase a marriage license for herself and her "color guard," Adam Landles, 40.

The bride-to-be wore a battered plug hat and a sash, with her "mother" title on it, around her shoulders. The prospective bridegroom carried his intended's banjo, which used to be a washpan. Both gave the Washington headquarters of the bonus army as their home addresses. They said they expected to be married tomorrow.

El Paso, Tex., June 20 (A.P.).—With their brass band playing and the American flag flying from the top of a freight train, 500 members of the California bonus army arrived today in El Paso en route to Washington. The weary veterans were taken to the National Guard Armory and were given food.

Royal W. Robertson, commander, said 1,700 who are traveling in automobiles will be stranded in Tucson until they can obtain enough money to buy 1,000 gallons of gasoline.

Belated Bonus Seekers, At Chicago, to Press On

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—A belated company of 87 bonus marchers from Western States arrived today, determined to push on to Washington despite the fact that the Senate has already killed the proposal to cash in soldiers' compensation this year.

BONUS ARMY'S COMMANDER REPUDIATES THIRD PARTYITES

W. Williamson, of Texas, as a member of the governing body. He represented the regiment at Thirteenth and B streets southwest. The committee also cleared Eugene J. Everett, of Jersey City, N. J., of charge of inefficiency in the administration of Camp Bartlett.

The executive committee did approve the action of the legislative committee in sending out queries to possible Democratic presidential nominees, asking their views on the bonus question and other legislation affecting veterans.

In connection with the third party movement, Commander in Chief Waters said: "I do not think it wise for the B. E. F. to subordinate itself to any organization or sponsor the cause of any organization. I believe this is a two-party nation. The idea of a third party may be a good one after the November elections when we are able to determine our strength against those who voted against the bonus."

His statement, which was approved by the executive committee of the army, repudiated the statements of members of the legislative committee that the Republican party was "out" so far as the veterans are concerned. "We must not forget," Waters said, "that we received support from both parties when our bill was before the House and Senate."

"What we propose to do is to learn the views of the various candidates. Those, whose views are in accord with ours, we will support. If an individual fails to support us, then we may put up a candidate of our own."

The question of the "army's" own candidates would not be determined until after it tests its strength at the polls in November. Waters did say, however, that President Hoover would receive no support from the "army."

Waters Denies He's Fascist.

The plan of Waters for a permanent organization to be known as the Bonus Expeditionary Forces was approved by the executive committee. Before a veteran may join, he must pledge "to uphold the Constitution" and to "swear unswerving allegiance to the flag." The joiner must also promise to give all possible assistance to the bonus fight and support candidates of both parties who approve bonus payment.

Waters denied rumors that he was connected with a Fascist group, and threatened legal action against any one who claimed he was connected with "any organization other than the bonus army."

In his reiteration of his view that Congress should help the veterans, Gen. Glassford said:

"These men were in the employ of the Federal Government during the war. I am fully convinced that the leaders are prepared to keep between 8,000 and 9,000 men here until they get relief by passage of the bonus bill or some other relief measure."

Dissension Effort Charged.

That a minority is trying to create dissension in the ranks and to counteract Waters' work of keeping the men in good order, was announced by Gen. Glassford. He accused the Workers Ex-Service Men's League, a Communist organization, of trying to foment disorder among the men.

As an instance of this subversive work, he said Camp Bartlett has proven unsuccessful as a concentration camp. Contrary to orders of Waters, units have been moved out of the camp to buildings in different parts of the city.

George Alman, deposed billeting officer of the army, will today address the men at Camp Glassford on Pennsylvania avenue near Fourth street northwest, to try to have them overrule the verdict of the executive committee which removed him because of a dispute he had with Capt. William G. Stott, of the Police Department, who has been aiding in quartering the men.

"Back-Door Moocher" Scored.

Commander A. M. Thomas, of Camp Marks, last night issued a request that "back-door moochers" who have been annoying residents with pleas for food, be ignored or placed into custody of policemen. All the men at Camp Marks, he said, are being fed and the solicitors are impostors.

Plans are underway for a more permanent organization at Camp Marks. Commander Thomas is organizing a campfire department, and is reorganizing the sanitary and police services. All donations of food designated for Camp Marks will be received at a special booth at the entrance to the camp.

Several cases of pneumonia were reported at Gallinger Hospital yesterday. Doak E. Carter, of Cleveland, aid to Commander Waters, is one of the victims at the camp.

Among the arrivals yesterday were Sergt. Charles Anthony Vincof, and two companions, who stowed away on a boat from Honolulu to San Francisco, and rode the freight cars to Washington.

NEW PLEAS VOICED FOR FEDERAL RELIEF

sion are nearer than our leaders realize," Dr. Goldstein said.

As debate was begun in the Senate on the relief bill, Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, its foremost sponsor, placed in the Congressional Record a message from Mark T. McKee, executive director of the American Legion's national employment commission, urging its approval.

McKee estimated the bill's provisions for Federal loans for self-liquidating construction and a big Government public works program would put at least 2,000,000 men to work.

The Senate pushed ahead with amendments to the measure, most of them minor.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, submitted an amendment seeking to permit loans to bona-fide cooperative finance institutions to finance the marketing of staple commodities produced in the United States. He explained this was to provide loans to manufacturers such as are made to farmers and live-stock men under existing law.

Senators Couzens (Republican), Michigan, and La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, opposed to disposing of the amendment quickly, each demanding adequate time be spent on it. Couzens contended it was a radical departure from national policy that deserved careful consideration.

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, proposed an amendment to permit loans up to an aggregate of $300,000,000 to States on their bonds for educational and hospital usage. He later withdrew the proposal, intending to resubmit it at another point in the measure.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, submitted an amendment to legalize and tax beer at 24 cents a gallon, which he estimated would raise upward of $150,000,000 for financing construction projects and within ten years would repay the $1,500,000,000 in reconstruction bonds.

On motion of Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, the Senate struck out a provision for loans to "quasi-public" agencies. Wheeler said that under the interpretation of the courts the inclusion of this language would permit loans to public utilities.

CYCLONE SINKS SHIP AFTER CREW LEAVES

Lower California Storms Cause Heavy Damage and Loss of Life.

Mexico City, June 20 (A.P.).—Dispatches from San Jose del Cabo, Lower California, said the American yacht Diana sank off the coast there today when struck by a cyclone that destroyed the ship after the crew escaped in lifeboats.

The crew reached Cabo San Lucas safely, the dispatches said, but there were unverified reports that some persons had been killed by the cyclone at Manzanillo.

A considerable section of Manzanillo was razed last night and today by the storm, which followed a heavy earthquake in that area Saturday, the reports said. The death toll was described as small, but the property damage heavy.

Details concerning the yacht Diana were lacking here, but it was supposed to be from Los Angeles or San Pedro, Calif.

A number of Mexican ships were reported in trouble off the west coast of Mexico today.

Confiscation Fears Lulled.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, June 20 (U.P.).—The apprehension of business men of the state over the possibility that their property might be seized by the government under the terms of the recently enacted expropriation law was somewhat quieted by President Ortiz Rubio's plea to governors to discourage expropriationary measures. No property has been expropriated and turned over to the workers in the state yet, although the law has been in effect almost a fortnight. However, all real estate transactions, both urban and rural, are at a standstill, as the purchasers are unwilling to risk the acquisition of property that might be seized immediately afterward.

Missing Flier Found.

Lima, June 20 (A.P.).—Donald Terry, American aviator, missing since Saturday when he took off with one passenger in a Faucett Airways plane, was found today by a rescue party at San Juan Beach, near Mazca, where he had been forced down by engine trouble.

Bandits Kill Bank Manager.

Merida, Yucatan, Mex., June 20 (U.P.).—Rafael Peon, manager of the Refaccionario Bank here, was killed yesterday when bandits attacked his ranch at Santa Ines. The outlaws also killed two ranch workers, a man and a woman.

Admiral Woodward Arrives.

Managua, Nicaragua, June 20 (A.P.).—Admiral Clark H. Woodward, U. S. N., who will supervise the Nicaraguan presidential election, arrived today.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE first half of the Oratorical Olympics is over. There is a temporary lull in the voice throwing, but the Democrats are ready to take up the michophones where the Grand Old Party dropped them.

* * * *

The Republicans have decided to use the same line-up, and the country now awaits the Chicago huddle which will determine the make-up of the Democratic team.

* * * *

The Republicans stuck to Hoover and Curtis, and the question is now whether they will be stuck with them.

* * * *

There was never any question about Mr. Hoover's renomination. About Mr. Curtis there was some question. Some people felt that he was too old, but a careful summary of the Vice President's activities showed that he had done nothing in the past four years to age him in the slightest.

* * * *

Both boys had to go through the motions of being so surprised you could have knocked them down with a clear statement on prohibition.

* * * *

The convention sent a long notification to President Hoover by telegram and the President responded the same way, the new tax on telegrams not being effective at the time.

* * * *

"The storm still surrounds us," said the President in his message of gratitude. This didn't gain him any new fame as a weather prophet, but it showed he is against premature picnics.

* * * *

Mr. Hoover's first act was to have a former presidential secretary named as chairman of the Republican National Committee. There is now a feeling that he controls enough secretaries alone to swing the election.

* * * *

The President will begin work on his acceptance speech soon and this time he will make no rash promises about chickens or two-car garages without knocking wood.

* * * *

It is expected that he will prepare his speech at his trout camp on the Rapidan, using flies or worms as the problem may require.

* * * *

The convention was orthodox Republican up to the time it took up prohibition. At this point the radio audience began to think it was listening to a rebroadcast of the Democratic convention Donnybrooks of 1924 and 1928, inclusive.

* * * *

The boys finally put through a plank which drained the noble experiment of considerable nobility and promised the voters a drink if they lived in the right State and didn't go visiting.

* * * *

The Democrats will put on their big show next and will probably make the fight at the Republican convention seem like a debate in the sign language. The Democrats are expected to make no bones over prohibition and come out with a plank for scrapping prohibition, deporting Mr. Volstead and putting the liquor industry back on a basis where it can be operated by a man with no speedboat, machine gun or prison record.

* * * *

PLEA FOR MERCY TO KEYNOTE SPEAKERS.

Don't shoot the poor pianist—
Don't send the poor lad west!
He had to play those pieces
And tried to do his best.
Don't draw your lethal weapons
Upon a keynote man;
You always should remember
He does the best he can.

Put back that big horse-pistol—
Don't shoot that speaker there!
He did not play such pieces
Because he liked the air;
Be gentle and forgiving—
Don't pump him full of shot!
He's just obeying orders
And wishes he was not.

ADD similes: As silly as telling a bankruptcy referee that there is no such word as fail.

BATTLE-SCARRED.

"Europe Takes 22 Million Earmarked Gold."—headline. After all the fighting over it, it must be what you would call cauliflower-earmarked gold by this time.

That man who demanded the rent for the Chicago convention hall before he would let the Republicans proceed, evidently didn't listen closely to those keynote speeches urging confidence in the grand old party.

U. S. MAY REVISE ARMAMENTS PLAN

Hoover and Stimson Talk With Gibson at Geneva Over Telephone.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The denouement of the general disarmament conference at Geneva is in sight. President Hoover and Secretary Stimson spent some time yesterday in telephonic conversation with Hugh Gibson, chairman of the American delegation at Geneva.

A curtain of reticence hung over the State Department and the White House with regard to developments at Geneva. No information could be gleaned in any official source and yet the following trends were persistently current in authoritative circles:

First—British Premier MacDonald and French Premier Herriot at Geneva have been endeavoring to make a direct connection between disarmament and intergovernmental debts.

Second—The European delegates, principally the British and French, have presented a new plan which American officials here were earnestly examining yesterday without announcing any result.

Third—The fate of the whole conference itself hangs in the balance as the negotiations have been proceeding aimlessly since February, without any appreciable result.

May Have to Be Revised.

Fourth—The nine points of the American disarmament plan as originally outlined by Ambassador Gibson may have to be somewhat revised to attain a general denominator of agreement.

The proximity of Lausanne to Geneva is chiefly responsible for the sudden appearance of the debt factor in the disarmament discussions. The statesmen have been in Lausanne since last week engaged in the discussion of German reparations and the problem of war debts.

During the week-end they went to Geneva and brought to the disarmament conference a new conception of the disarmament problem, which is believed to be related in more or less direct fashion with the general problem of the Lausanne debt negotiations.

The American position with regard to the two subjects is that no discussion can be raised on the matter of debt cancellation or adjustment until Europe puts her own house in order. The American delegation to Geneva is anxious to see a satisfying reduction in land armaments, such as the United States spontaneously offered the world at the Washington Naval Conference. However, the tendency in Geneva and at Lausanne is to link reduction of armament with reduction of European debts to the United States.

Gives Constant Study.

The recent discussions of the disarmament delegates have been of a more general nature than the technical schemes of armament reduction that have hitherto been on the table. However, the technical side of the reductions has not been lost sight of in the sudden presentation of economic arguments that recently entered the picture.

President Hoover has been giving the Geneva developments his constant study even to the anxiety of his campaign managers who are trying to develop the plans for the campaign. However, the President sent for Assistant Secretary of State James Grafton Rogers yesterday and reviewed with him the main points of the disarmament situation as they had a short time previously been outlined from Geneva by the chairman of the American delegation himself.

After the White House conference, Secretary Stimson spent most of the day with his Assistant Secretary, and the disarmament expert of the State Department, J. Pierrepont Moffat, was frequently called into the discussions.

Mr. Rogers declined to answer any questions as to the developments at Geneva. Such an attitude of secretiveness at the department is often the forerunner of an important announcement of policy.

Present Own Ideas.

The various delegations at Geneva have been putting forth their own nationalistic conceptions of the steps necessary to achieve the purpose of the conference. The American and British theses have been relatively close, but the French delegation under former Premier Tardieu presented an outline of disarmament based on an international army for security that was promptly forgotten as soon as Edouard Herriot became premier and head of the delegation.

The Herriot outline for disarmament contains some shreds of the Tardieu plan, but in the main it now reposes on a quantitive reduction of budgetary armament expenditures over a certain number of years. The British still adhere to their original proposal and the United States has developed that paragraph of the first plan which had to do with the reduction of effectives.

The newer American idea in this respect was the computation of all the number of military forces necessary to the maintenance of order in any country and comparing it with the population and territory. This would be used as a ratio to reduce to comparative levels the armies of other nations.

REPARATIONS SPLIT FRANCE AND BRITAIN

the Germans admit their ability to pay something.

Bargaining during the remainder of the week appeared tonight to be the most likely result of the deadlock.

It was understood M. Herriot had proposed a three-year suspension of all reparations at the conclusion of which an international commission would decide whether Germany should make nominal payments in the form of railway bonds.

The reparations battle revealed that the much publicized Anglo-French understanding, supposedly arrived at by Mr. MacDonald and M. Herriot at preconference discussions at Paris, was nonexistent. It revealed also that almost all parties to the controversy were at variance in their interpretations of the moratorium understanding signed last week.

This understanding was that reparations and war debt payments would be suspended for the period of the conference without prejudice to ulterior agreements. The prime movers in this supposed agreement were Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium.

DUBLIN WELCOMES POPE PIUS' LEGATE

Eucharistic Congress Hosts Extend Big Greeting to Cardinal Lauri.

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 20 (A.P.).—Cardinal Lauri, the Pope's legate to the Eucharistic Congress, which opens Wednesday, arrived in Dublin today and was welcomed by great demonstrations of public enthusiasm and by splendid religious ceremonials.

Kingstown's cobalt-blue bay was as smooth as glass as the cardinal's ship sailed in escorted by roaring airplanes and greeted by booming guns. Thousands of men and women lined the hills near the quay. As they cheered, the cardinal, standing on the bridge, waved to them.

Welcomed by De Valera.

After being welcomed by President Eamon de Valera, Archbishop Byrne, Primate of Ireland, and other notables the papal legate proceeded to the gates of Dublin, leaving a tangled mass of traffic in the wake of his procession.

Dublin's lord mayor met him at the gates and made him an honorary citizen. After an ecclesiastical procession through the heart of the city the cardinal was met at the door of the cathedral by the 29 bishops of Ireland. Archbishop Byrne welcomed the legate there in behalf of the bishops and of the Cathedral Chapter.

Legate's Guard of Honor.

After the presentation of the crucifix and other ceremonials, the cardinal legate entered the cathedral where, from the epistle corner, he sang the prayer of the immaculate conception. After this he gave a solemn blessing from the altar.

A special unit of 60 soldiers, who were inspected yesterday by President De Valera, has been appointed to serve as the legate's guard of honor. They are mounted troopers, and their uniforms are of St. Patrick's blue with saffron trimming. They wear gold busbies adorned with ostrich plumes.

San Rafael, Calif., June 20 (A.P.).—The will of Robert Dollar, shipping magnate, was filed for probate here today. The estate was listed as $68,000, but the bequests exceeded that amount. Capt. Dollar wrote he had provided for his wife and three sons by establishment of the Dollar Investment Co.

The bequests included:

Presbyterian Foreign Board of Missions, $50,000.

Home Missions of Presbyterian Church, $30,000.

San Francisco Presbyterian Orphanage, San Anselmo, $20,000 for the Grace Dollar Memorial.

San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, $10,000 for the Robert Dollar chair. This brings the total for this chair to $80,000, with previous contributions.

Dollar said in his will he already had given more than a million dollars for charitable purposes.

R. Stanley Dollar, the eldest surviving son, today filed a petition to be appointed executor.

Radio Commission Moves Its Offices

Other Transfers Expected to Bring Rent Saving Up to $100,000.

The Government expects to save approximately $54,000 in its annual rent bill by moving the Federal Radio Commission offices from the National Press Building to the Department of the Interior, a change which was started yesterday.

Another saving of $30,000 will be effected by taking the Federal Board of Vocational Guidance from the Lenox Building, Fifteenth and L streets, into the Architects Building.

The General Accounting Office will take some of its old files from the Merchants' Transfer & Storage Co. to the old Patent Office at Ninth and F streets northwest. The change is expected to save about $12,500. The total savings by the rearrangement of the offices will be approximately $100,000.

Scientists Inside Crater Treated to New Eruption

By THE REV. BERNARD R. HUBBARD, S. J.

Klae Pilot Point, Alaska (from Aniakchak Volcano), June 20 (A.P.).—Aniakchak, world's largest explosive crater, is now putting on a new eruption, seemingly for the especial benefit of the Santa Clara University expedition, and eight of us are now camped on the steaming floor of the mammoth volcano.

Many days of arduous climbing were avoided when we were met, four days out of Kejulik Bay, by Pilot Frank Dorbrandt, who flew our party and equipment inside the volcano.

We will spend ten days in the crater, charting the new eruptions, taking temperatures of the fumaroles (holes from which volcanic vapors issue) and studying formation of the minerals.

We expect this expedition will climax the three years' scientific study of Aniakchak by the Santa Clara expedition and it is expected to yield interesting and valuable data.

After landing at Kejulik Bay, on the Alaska Peninsula, the Rev. Paul Gaites, Jesuit scientist of the University of Santa Clara; Prof. Rodrick Chisholm, Kenneth Chisholm, George Peterson, Edgar Levin and myself started the trek to the volcano. For four days the heavy scientific equipment and supplies were relayed toward the crater.

Half way to the volcano, Dorbandt, who flew a few of us into the crater last month, making the first landing in an active volcano, swooped down from the air.

FEDERAL PURCHASE OF SILVER FAVORED

Senate Banking Committee Votes Favorable Report on Pittman Bill.

(Associated Press.)

A favorable report on the Pittman bill authorizing the United States to buy up the domestic silver production was voted, 6 to 4 yesterday by the Senate banking committee.

Chairman Norbeck declined to make public the votes of the committee members, announcing only the totals. The measure was recommended to the full committee by a subcommittee Saturday, which favored it by a 2-to-1 vote.

As the bill stands the United States would be authorized to purchase all the domestic silver at the current market price at the time bought, with a limit of 5,000,000 ounces monthly and a price limit of 50 cents per ounce.

The bullion would be paid for through the issuance of silver certificates of $10, $25, and $1 denominations and subsidiary metal coins.

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, sponsor of the measure, and other advocates of rehabilitation of the white metal as a monetary unit, contend that removal from the world market of the United States production would aid enormously.

This country produces roughly about one-fifth of the world's annual production, the domestic peak output in recent years having been approximately 31,000,000 ounces.

An expenditure of from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000 annually was estimated as likely to be needed to take the domestic metal off the market.

Commissioners May Act Upon Sign Rules Today

Proposed amendments to the sign regulations are scheduled to be acted on today by the Commissioners upon recommendation of the sign committee. The latter's report has not been made public.

It was indicated that the committee may oppose the amendment which would permit labor picketing, but the Commissioners, on the other hand, may adopt the change as the regulation in question was never intended to interfere with labor matters.

Court Is Reversed In Veteran's Claim

The Veterans' Administration gained a reversal of a verdict, originally given in the District Supreme Court, yesterday when the District Court of Appeals found reversible errors in the proceedings of the lower court and instructed the Supreme Court to grant the Government a new trial.

The case was that of Filodemo, G. Balance, former soldier, who sustained injuries in the war. The record of his illness, as submitted to the District Supreme Court, contained "self-serving" declarations made by Balance, and these declarations were held to have been prejudicial to the Government's case.

In the declarations, Balance said that he had numerous serious ailments that he contracted in the war. Assistant United States Attorney John W. Wood and Attorneys C. L. Dawson and W. C. Pickett, of the Veterans' Administration, prosecuted the appeal.

FAULTY FUSE SAVES SCORES IN ENGLAND

Lord Lloyd and Others Are Endangered by Bomb at School Exercises.

St. Bees, Cumberland, England, June 20 (U.P.).—A faulty fuse saved Lord Lloyd, former High Commissioner for Egypt; the Bishop of Carlisle and perhaps a score of others from death Saturday at the St. Bees School exercises, the explosives expert of the home office announced tonight after examining a bomb found under the speakers' platform.

The expert, Dr. H. E. Watts, said the bomb would have killed at least 20 persons in the crowd of 350 at the ceremonies, if it had not been for a faulty fuse.

At that time, those near the platform heard what they described as a "whirring sound." Later the clockwork bomb was found.

Dr. Watts said it was the work of a bomb expert.

Pacific Quake Is Recorded.

Victoria, B. C., June 20 (A.P.).—An earthquake believed to have occurred in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of Oregon was recorded early today at Gonzales observatory. The first tremors were recorded at 1:28 a. m., and shocks continued for one and three-quarters hours. F. Napier Denison, superintendent, estimated the epicenter as 340 miles from here.

Do you inhale?

The tobacco trade is at "sixes and sevens" on this embarrassing question

DO you inhale? This simple question caught the cigarette trade by surprise! "Why bring that up?" they asked. "Why don't you let well-enough alone?"

But "well-enough" is not enough for Lucky Strike! The subject of inhaling is vitally important . . . for every smoker inhales knowingly or unknowingly. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette!

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike dares to raise this vital question... because Luckies' famous purifying process removes certain impurities concealed in every tobacco leaf! Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!

MEDAL TO BE GIVEN MRS. PUTNAM TODAY

Distinguished Service Medal Voted Her to Be Presented by Hoover.

On the eve of her triumphant arrival in Washington to receive the official plaudits of an enthusiastic Nation, congressional authorization for one of the highest honors in the land was voted last night to Amelia Earhart Putnam, transatlantic aviatrix.

With special legislation enacted by the House, President Hoover was authorized to present Mrs. Putnam with the Distinguished Service Medal. The resolution, brought up by Representative McSwain, chairman of the military affairs committee, was returned to the Senate with an amendment. As originally passed by the Senate, it provided the award of a Distinguished Flying Cross. The House substituted the service medal.

Mrs. Putnam is due at Washington Airport at 10 o'clock this morning aboard a Ludington plane. She landed in New York yesterday, sailing from Europe on the Ile de France. Her plane will leave shortly after 8:30 a. m., and will be met at the airport by a delegation of Government and aviation officials.

At Constitution Hall.

During the trip to Washington Mrs. Putnam will fly as a passenger. Accompanied by her husband, George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher; his son, David Binney; Paul Collins, vice president of the Ludington Lines, and Bernt Balchen, Admiral Byrd's South Pole pilot, the famous woman flyer will be escorted by a detail of police through downtown Washington to the Mayflower Hotel.

The presentation of the medal will be made by President Hoover at 8 o'clock tonight in Constitution Hall. The exercises will be under the auspices of the National Geographic Society.

The first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean, the first to fly it solo and the first pilot, man or woman, to cross it twice in an airplane, Mrs. Putnam yesterday received the welcome of New York as only New Yorkers know how to conduct such an event.

Amid the deafening shriek of whistles, swirling yards of ticker tape and encouraging shouts of the thousands who lined city streets from the Battery to City Hall, the tall, slim aviatrix, a tight-fitting hat holding down her tousled blond hair, was escorted up Broadway in the traditional manner accorded famous persons.

Plans for Reception.

Above the din Mrs. Putnam continually protested she was being "overpraised." The flight, she declared, was only a "personal gesture," and meant nothing at all to aviation.

On the steps of City Hall, Mayor Walker extended his city's official greeting. The cross of honor of the United States Flag Association, presented to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the Capitol steps here, was given to Mrs. Putnam. She insisted she be called Miss Earhart. "That's my name in aviation," she said.

Elaborate plans for a mammoth reception when Mrs. Putnam reaches the Nation's Capital, were under way last night. Dr. John Oliver LaGorce, vice president of the National Geographic Society, is in charge of arrangements.

A second plane, acting as escort to Mrs. Putnam's ship, will leave New York directly behind her. Aboard it will be members of the Society of Women Geographers. A huge crowd is expected to gather at Washington-Hoover Airport to be on hand for her arrival.

Raichle Presents Plea For Particulars Bill

Frank G. Raichle, under indictment for subornation of perjury and obstruction of justice, yesterday presented to Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court, oral arguments of his motion to require Government attorneys to furnish him with a bill of particulars setting forth in detail the crimes with which he is charged.

James O. Moore, of Buffalo, who will act as Raichle's counsel when he goes to trial tomorrow, argued the motion for Raichle, while Neil Burkinshaw, special assistant to Nugent Dodds, Assistant Attorney General, opposed the motion. Justice Letts took the matter under advisement. He said he would rule on it today.

Senators Are Hard-Boiled, And They Are Proud of It

By JOHN J. DALY

IN the midst of his campaign for renomination, Senator Smith, of South Carolina, stopped off in Aiken to chastise certain critics who called for reform of the United States Senate.

Reform the United States Senate? Why, fellow citizens, the United Senate is past reformation.

"Idle talk," the senator from South Carolina told these fellows, adding: "The United States Senate is the hardest boiled body on God's green earth."

Offhand, a casual observer might say the senator was pulling the long bow, but Senator Smith has been a member of the Greatest Deliberative Body on Earth for twenty-four years.

When a man who has been on the job that long says that the Senate is hard-boiled, you must, at least, respect his opinion, heed his words. This, despite the fact that the Senate, at first glance, seems such a serene old chamber. Alas, appearances are deceptive.

* * * *

ALL this senatorial serenity is on the surface. A hard-boiled egg also looks serene, but once the shell is cracked the secret is out. Scratch a senator and you find, at heart, a gun-man—a two-gun-man, a hard-boiled brother.

* * * *

ALL you have to do to prove that the senator from South Carolina is right is to go to Capitoline Hill and petition the Senate for something. It makes no difference what you ask for, you will not get it. Seek from the Senate, for instance, a bonus, or cancellation of the war debts, or a boost in Government pay, or a means of evading budget balancing, or a revision of any measure of economy—and see where you come out. These old gladiators of the senatorial arena are apt to tear you to pieces—limb from limb, or throw you to the dogs. Ask the Senate to have a heart and you see a senatorial gizzard. Brrrr, but they are hard-boiled!

* * * *

THE Senate, you will find, has no heart. The Senate is all head—as befits a great deliberate body. So Senator Smith, of South Carolina, suh, is right. He is dog-gone right.

You might, in your innocence, think that the Chicago gangsters are hard-boiled; or that the hotel men of Manhattan, Atlantic City and other resorts, are hard-boiled; or that the boy and girl bandits roaming the land, putting people on the spot, taking them for a ride, are hard-boiled. You must come down some time and meet one of the senators, one of the United States senators—and then see the full Senate in action. All Nero did was fiddle while Rome burned. Our empirical senators smash violins—over the heads of their constituency.

Are they hard-boiled? Compared to the Senate, a convention of loan sharks is made up of soft-hearted men.

Ask Senator Smith, of South Carolina. He knows.

Pension Asked for Mrs. Eslick.

Appropriation of $10,000 for the widow of the late Representative Edward E. Eslick (Democrat), Tennessee, was recommended to Congress yesterday by President Hoover.

COAL MEN WILL TRY TO ADJUST DISPUTES

Operators and Workers in Midwest Fields Are to Meet This Week.

Indianapolis, June 20 (A.P.).—Efforts will be made at two conferences this week to resume work in the Indiana coal fields and to return thousands of idle mine workers to their jobs.

The first will be held here Wednesday when a conference of miners and operators will meet at the international headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America on a call issued by John L. Lewis, president of the union.

The other will be held Thursday at Terre Haute when a scale convention will assemble to act on the proposed $4 daily basic wage agreed upon recently by a subcommittee of the joint scale committee of District 11 of the Mine Workers and the Indiana Coal Operators Association.

President Lewis invited four leaders to meet Wednesday with him to consider the advisability of assembling an interstate joint conference to negotiate a uniform wage agreement for Indiana and Illinois. They are: John Templeton, Terre Haute, president of the Indiana Coal Operators Association; Abe Vales, Terre Haute, president of District 11; John H. Walker, Springfield, Ill., president of District 12, and W. J. Jenkins, Chicago, president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association.

This conference proposes to negotiate a uniform wage agreement for both District 12 of Illinois and District 11 of Indiana, because of the similarity of circumstances, while the Terre Haute conference will consider only with the Indiana district and its new proposed agreement.

President Lewis pointed out that during the last eleven weeks the mines of the two States have been closed because of "mutual inability of operators and mine workers to agree upon the terms of a wage contract."

LONG ASSAILS REED FOR SENATE ATTACK

(Associated Press.)

Jubilant over recent victories in Louisiana, Senator Huey P. Long breezed into the Capitol yesterday en route to the Chicago convention, replied to a critic, and assailed two of his political antagonists.

The Louisiana Democrat criticized Ernest A. Burgueleres, whose nomination for immigration commissioner at New Orleans he is opposing, and Marcel Garsaud, whose reappointment to the Power Commission he is fighting.

But the bulk of his speech on the floor was directed at Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, for criticizing him some days ago for being absent in Louisiana, where Senator Long had gone to put some bills through the Legislature.

Senator Reed's criticism, Senator Long said, was a case of "the pot calling the kettle black," adding that he thought "the senator from Pennsylvania has even been absent in attending to his law business," but that he "might be wrong on that point."

Senator Long said he was a "liberal" on the subject of senators going home to mend political fences as "all of us have to go back" at times for that purpose. He added with a smile directed at Senator Reed:

"I'm not so fortunate as the senator from Pennsylvania. I'm here in my own right as a United States senator. I haven't got a Vare or a Mellon in Louisiana to help me come to the Senate. I've got to get votes."

Senator Reed told newspapermen later he did not intend to reply to Long.

On the floor, he told Senator Long, when the latter solicitiously remarked "I don't want to offend the senator from Pennsylvania," that he "couldn't."

Last week, the Pennsylvanian said the absence of Senator Long in Louisiana was holding up the Senate's business.

A BONUS PARTY.

Threats by World War veterans camped in Washington that they will form a party of their own or join a third party movement unless the Democrats come to their aid at the Chicago convention next week are not to be taken seriously. The most certain way of defeating the bonus and all other veterans' legislation would be the formation of a bonus party. Its strength would be negligible. The issue of public welfare versus class legislation would be so clearly drawn that the veterans would probably alienate all the sympathy which they have aroused.

Formation of a bonus party would release all members of both the major parties from any sense of obligation to the ex-service men's cause. Members of Congress would not be inclined to promote veterans' legislation of any kind, if they were certain that "bonus" candidates would be lined up against them at the next election under any circumstances. The organization of a veterans' party would thus become a boomerang.

The more important issue is what the Democratic National Convention intends to do about the bonus question. Representatives of the veterans' army in Washington have gone to Chicago to demand approval of bonus legislation in the Democratic platform. Inasmuch as President Hoover is unalterably opposed to immediate payment of the bonus, the Democrats have the opportunity of making a political issue of it.

In the House of Representatives the bonus was almost entirely a Democratic project. Speaker Garner had many opportunities to kill the measure and thus prevent the cruel deception of ex-service men who were lured to Washington by prospects that the measure might be approved. But the Speaker maintained silence on the question while his colleagues indulged in ceaseless bonus agitation. If the convention at Chicago should indorse the action of the House on the Patman bill it would slap in the face many staunch Democrats in the Senate who voted against it to save the Government from bankruptcy. Furthermore, a vote in favor of debasement of the currency or for handing ex-service men $2,400,000,000 out of an empty Treasury would turn the business interests of the country definitely away from the Democratic party and might result in its defeat in November.

It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that the Democratic platform will be noncommittal on the bonus issue. The party faces enough feuds and schisms at Chicago without becoming entangled in a row over the bonus. Even if a majority of the delegates favored immediate payment of the bonus, the party could not afford to antagonize the great taxpaying public. In all probability the bonus will not become a direct issue between the two major parties, and veterans will confine their activities largely to campaigning against members of Congress who placed governmental stability above the demands of the bonus army. The public should have no difficulty in deciding that question in each congressional district.

DISSENSION IN IRELAND.

When President Eamon de Valera, of the Irish Free State, began his campaign to abolish the oath of allegiance to King George, he was generally suspected of taking the first step toward creation of an independent Irish republic. Now the cat is out of the bag. In attempting to induce the British cabinet to grant his demands Mr. de Valera revealed his ultimate aim. The result is to make a fiasco of the Irish government's project.

President de Valera's plan tends to arouse all the bitter feelings that prevailed before creation of the Free State. His first objective is to secure a union between the Free State and Ulster, or northern Ireland. Ulster has no more sympathy with Mr. de Valera and his schemes than has England. If any move might precipitate a clash between the English and the Irish, it would be an attempt to raise an independent Irish flag over Ulster.

So far as the Free State itself is concerned, the British government seems inclined to let Mr. de Valera do his worst. If the oath is abolished and the land annuities are not paid, Britain, and probably the dominions, will refuse to make any tariff arrangements with the Free State. It is up to the Free State government to decide whether the economic advantages of membership in the British commonwealth of nations are more important than abolition of the oath. The irreconcilable de Valera must either back down or subject the Irish people to widespread distress.

The ambition of the Irish radicals to set up an independent republic that would be associated "in some circumstances and for some reasons" with the British Empire is a pipe dream. The Free State is too small, and Ulster will not join. Parliament and all the dominions will probably urge that the Free State remain a member of the commonwealth. David Lloyd George hints that a republic would be intolerable, because a hostile Ireland would hopelessly complicate Britain's national defense.

It is apparent that Mr. de Valera has antagonized Ulster, Great Britain and the dominions by his scheme to take Ireland out of the British Empire. It remains to be seen whether citizens of the Free State will sacrifice their economic welfare by standing with their president to the bitter end.

SAVED FROM SALARY CUTS.

Once more the House has surrendered to the sounder judgment of the Senate. By accepting the furlough plan for Government employes, instead of a drastic pay cut, the House reversed its former action by an overwhelming vote. It is very impressive to see the House voting 326 to 45 in support of President Hoover's plan and against the measure designed and supported by its own leaders.

The most important thing is, however, the definite approval of the furlough plan. It already had the approval of the Senate, and since it was designed by President Hoover, its enactment into law is now only a matter of form.

Credit for saving Federal employes from a drastic slash in their salaries is due to President Hoover. It is true that employes will be called upon to sacrifice some $80,000,000 of their salaries during the next year. But the basic rate of pay has been maintained. The furlough is only a temporary expedient to help the Government over a tough place. When the emergency has passed employes will not be required to take vacations without pay. Nor will they have to fight for a reinstatement of their former wage scales.

Lower salaries for Federal employes could not be justified. They have been asked to make a sacrifice only because governmental economies are imperative to balance the budget. Similar sacrifices are being made in many industries. Now that the Government has adopted the principle of the five-day week, private enterprise may be expected to make wider application of this means of dividing available work. In this way wages for work actually done can be maintained, but the employes will have more leisure to use as they see fit.

It remains for Congress to protect employes against furloughs of more than 30 days. Departmental appropriations ought not to be trimmed below the point necessary to maintain the existing payrolls for 11 months. No regular Government worker should be subjected to additional furloughs when he has sacrificed more than 8 per cent of his annual salary. Let Congress make certain that there is no pyramiding of sacrifices upon employes who are compelled to take payless vacations.

TRUCKS VS. RAILROADS.

The omnipresent truck with its convenient pickup and delivery service has led many to wonder whether motor transportation is destined to supplant the railways. Such speculation takes little account of the comparatively small percentage of freight that is handled by trucks, notwithstanding the numbers that are encountered upon every highway. It takes only a superficial investigation of the facts to show that the tremendous volume of traffic necessary to supply the requirements of this country can be handled only by rail.

There is no question that encroachments of truck competition upon rail freight, not only for short, but for comparatively long hauls, has had a marked influence on reduced earnings of many roads, particularly noticeable during the depression with its greatly reduced tonnage. But while trucks may handle 5 or 6 per cent of the Nation's freight to the disadvantage of the railroads, there is slight probability that such service could be augmented to handle the total.

Prof. William Z. Ripley, of Harvard University, who has made a study of this question, says that notwithstanding the competition of motors, subsidized waterways and pipelines, the railroads are indispensable. Highways could not handle the entire freight traffic of the Nation if they were devoted entirely to that purpose. During their busiest years the freight traffic of Class 1 railroads amounted to nearly 500,000,000,000 ton-miles. To handle this traffic Prof. Ripley figures it would require more than 6,000,000 five-ton trucks constantly at work.

It is difficult to conceive what the addition of such a monster cavalcade to the existing freight and passenger cars already using the highways would mean. It is not difficult to figure that 6,250,000 trucks would form a procession that would more than encircle the globe. They would form a column ten abreast, with fenders touching, from New York to San Francisco. Prof. Ripley is right in his conclusion that "the railroads are bound to stay indefinitely; the country could not do without them; there is no other way to meet the physical requirements."

AMERICAN AIR LINES.

Some Americans have the idea that air transportation in Europe is superior to the service provided in this country. According to competent observers and technical experts, however, the only point of superiority in European airways is the attention given to the comfort of passengers in the larger airports, such as Croyden and Le Bourget. With regard to costs there is little difference between European and American rates and the personnel is of equal skill on both continents.

American lines are rated as superior with regard to speed, airway equipment, safety, air mail transportation, passenger comfort in flight, maintenance and line supervision. Transportation schedules in America show greater speed than those of Europe by 15 to 20 miles per hour. The only aids to European route flying are weather reports and a radio direction flying system. There are no emergency fields and few beacon lights, so that there is virtually no night flying abroad.

Air passengers in America are given every possible attention while in flight, meals being served regularly, passenger comfort attended to by an experienced "hostess" who in all cases is required to have had training as a nurse. Reading matter is always available, in fact services are comparable to those provided on a modern club train. On most European lines no attention is given passengers from the time they board a plane until they get off.

The big DO-X built by Dr. Dornier, which recently returned to Europe, illustrates this contention regarding the American demand for speed. The DO-X while roomy and comfortable, carrying many passengers, has a maximum speed of only 137 miles per hour. An American design would be as efficient aerodynamically, but due to lower horse-power loading, that is weighing less though of equal power, the plane would have greater speed. Regular service between Washington and New York, 230 miles, is now maintained on a flight time of 80 minutes. Initial costs as well as operating expenses are greater with American machines, but the longer distances to be covered and the faster tempo of American life make speed a more important factor in this country than in Europe.

GAINS OUT OF ADVERSITY.

In addressing the graduates of Princeton University President John Grier Hibben definitely linked the widespread commercialization of life with the depression. Prosperity which is based on a feverish desire to gain wealth only for wealth's sake, he said, is a delusion.

Dr. Hibben expressed with unusual clearness what many other students of modern life have been thinking since hard times put an end to the gyrations of finance. During the frantic years preceding 1929 the people were preoccupied with building fortunes as never before. The more enduring values of life were subordinated to money-making. At the very time when the sustenance of life became easier than it had ever been before a larger percentage of the people began to devote their full time and energy to economic pursuits. When regarded from this angle it is not surprising that prosperity became top-heavy and began to crumble.

Dr. Hibben states his thesis in these words:

> The basic and initial element of weakness in our prosperity was the fact that it was structurally unsound. It rested upon a foundation that could not sustain the immense load that its vast magnitude placed upon it. This initial weakness was due to the fact that a false objective had been set as representing the supreme and almost exclusive value of man's ambitions, purposes and strivings. This objective was visioned in purely materialistic terms: the amassing of wealth as rapidly as possible in a manner such that the maximum of returns might follow a minimum of labor. * * *
> The supreme values of life should be recognized as the values that are ends in themselves, and they are resident not in the eternal world of getting and gaining, but in the foundation of individual character itself.

So long as the major portion of human energy was required to supply food, shelter, clothing and other necessities of life learning, culture, art and character development were essentially side issues. Now it is quite possible for any civilized society to attain a high standard of living, from an economic standpoint, by using only part of the human energy that is available. It is unquestionably true that the attempt of the people to devote their energy to purely economic pursuits lies at the bottom of the current world-wide overproduction and the resultant shrinkage of material values during the last three years.

If this period of disappearing fortunes produces greater appreciation for life's enduring values, it will not be devoid of constructive elements. History may record this period as only a passing incident in man's great struggle to use his new tools and his widening intelligence for his own greatest benefit.

MILITARY TRAINING

By GEORGE L. BERRY.

The term "military training in schools" has developed a state of mind in many quarters that the purpose of using Reserve Officers' Training Corps in schools was to militarize the school and the students thereof in America and in consequence of this state of mind considerable opposition presents itself. Much of the opposition comes from well-meaning, patriotic citizens. From other sources criticisms arise that are ulterior in their classification.

The American Legion's advocacy of military training, and let us call it that, in the schools of our country is an attitude of frankness that is deserving of the most sympathetic consideration of all. It is proposed that the boys of today, the citizens of tomorrow, shall have the benefit of some understanding of the necessity of self-protection, and with this that they shall profit physically as well as mentally by the training attendant on such public instructions in the schools of our country.

The development of a war spirit, which must not be associated with the military training in schools, comes not in consequence of developing the facilities of self-protection, but from political and economic injustices, and if political and economic injustices become intolerable, then a man's ability to defend himself could not be considered a liability, but, to the contrary, a very definite asset.

There ought to be enough social order, economic justice and religious influence to control the spirit of war without seeking the establishment of a state of helplessness on the part of the citizens of tomorrow. It is my opinion, therefore, that the Reserve Officers' Training Corps in schools is an aid not only in the education of the youth of our land, but is a direct contribution to their physical well-being and offers advantages in the furtherance of citizenship service.

POST HASTE.

Democrats in Congress work for adjournment this week; the show in Chicago next week is going to be too good to miss.

Competent old-time Democratic political observer Louis Siebold says that anything is likely to happen at the convention, as "not a single definite agreement on any of the problems is likely to be accomplished without a knockdown-and-dragout conflict."

The first act of the Eucharistic Congress was to euchre King George's representative out of a seat. A religious meeting shouldn't be called a congress.

No doubt about it, George Wickersham is our most indefatigable windmill fighter. He has started a new national crusade for the immediate settlement of international debts.

The Soviet organ Pravda charges that certain imperialistic circles in the United States are encouraging Japan to make war on Russia. As though we had to go that far to look for trouble.

Steamship companies are offering European trips on future installments to any person with a "permanent position or regular income." But who would take chances leaving anything like that behind, these days?

Japan promises to be neutral if the "independent state" of Manchukuo seizes the Chinese custom house at Darien, though doubtless secretly aggrieved at the very thought of such ruthless action by the ferocious Pu-Yi.

Suggestions that a prohibition amendment be submitted to the present Congress are just as practical as bonus marches and the organization of separate parties by prohibitionists, veterans, Socialists, Communists and Farm-Laborites.

This is an unlucky year for bush-league isms.

The new home building plans must arrange to provide front doors that are not so attractive to wolves.

The advertising clubs staged a welcome for Amelia Earhart Putnam in New York, but the spectacle of all her publicity, with nothing to sell, made it a lodge of sorrow.

Every time the Hitlerites score gains that just miss control of another German state you can see France planning disarmament—of the Nazis.

FREEDOM.

Boy, if you would drop to sleep
Undisturbed, then you must keep Ear alert, in times of choice,
To that whispering inner voice
Pleading with you to be true
To the finer side of you.

If you'd live from year to year,
Standing of no man in fear,
Free to speak, and free to act,
Make with none a secret pact.
Choose, when trial comes to you,
What you know is right to do.

Gain is loss when basely won;
Wrong is never cheaply done.
Who to cunning has been swayed
Lives of every foe afraid.
Knowledge of his moments weak
Robs him of the power to speak.

Dread of gossip of his past
Holds him shackled to the last.
Hostage unto shame he stands,
Silenced tongue and fettered hands.
To attack the wrongs they see

The Treasure in the Vault Is Yours if You Can Pick the Rusty Lock.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A TRAVELING man has packed his case in the same way many hundreds of times. On one occasion, having left home with a burden of anxiety, he begins to wonder whether the packing was correctly done. The answer is not hard to find.

If he packed the case thoughtfully, making conscious effort to remember each detail, he may have overlooked something. If he did it absently, while his thoughts dwelt on other matters, every item was packed in its accustomed place. The work was directed by his subconscious mind, which never forgets or makes mistakes.

Printers distribute type without error while day-dreaming of other things. Their habit-trained subconscious minds direct the work perfectly.

Many students have shared the experience of dreaming the correct solution of a problem. Their conscious minds were baffled. Their subconscious minds, knowing their desire and being released by sleep, promptly made use of their training and gave the service so urgently needed.

All of which means that you have at your command, seldom used because little understood, a servant that has wisdom and knowledge much greater than yours.

It not only treasures the knowledge gathered by your senses, but in some mysterious way adds one fact to another to produce the quality called wisdom.

Your subconscious mind is older than the other. Before you had conscious wit enough to follow a sound with your eyes, your subconscious mind was directing the operation and movement of your heart, mouth and vocal chords. It was born with the wisdom called instinct.

It told you when your system had need of water or food or other service. And your conscious mind, while you were young, acted on this information as nature intended.

But as you grew older you began to disregard such information. You postponed eating and drinking and other things. And then Nature, which always discards unused faculties, broke the contact between your conscious and subconscious minds.

But if by want of practice you have lost the ability to use your subconscious mind, by means of practice you can regain it.

And then your faint "hunches" will be definite orders, and your conscious mind, which is subject to your will, can draw on the vast resources of the subconscious when you have need of them.

Retaining Army Officers.

Houston Post.

The Senate has shown a keener appreciation of the need for maintaining adequate military defense for the Nation than has the House, by including in the War Department appropriation bill funds for retaining the 2,000 army officers whom the House bill cut off. It is to be hoped that the conferees will keep the Senate appropriation in the measure that they approve.

When there are only 12,000 commissioned officers in the Army, official Army personnel is not the place to be practicing economy through dismissals. Drastic curtailment in Government expenditures is urgently needed at this time, but impairment of the national defense is dangerous and undesirable economy. There is such a thing, it is to be remembered, as being penny wise and pound foolish.

Congressional Consistency.

Jacksonville Journal.

Congress appropriates millions from an empty treasury and then denounces the bears for selling stock they do not own.

Lifting the "Mortgage."

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Sustaining his record as the most chronically cheerful of givers, Mr. Raskob has now reduced his "mortgage" on the Democratic party by another $100,000. The national committee, which still owes him a trifle of $120,000, may feel like echoing the Irishman's remark: "May your honor live till I pay you." At this rate of forgiving his debtor, Mr. Raskob may soon agree to calling it "all square."

The deficit of the committee now stands at $559,000. It was $786,000 on March 1. A cash balance of $117,000 is apparently to be counted against the deficit, so that the committee is beginning to get from under its burden. But this is going to be a poor year for compaign contributions unless a few more "angels" like Mr. Raskob can be induced to come to the rescue.

A $20,000 Rebuke.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Senator Neely, of West Virginia, is noted for his taciturnity. He seldom speaks, and then usually to express an opinion without ornamentation; but the waste of "115 precious legislative hours" the last two weeks moved him to break his silence in a voluble Philippic against the contagion of "virulent verbosity" raging around him.

Senator Neely had grown tired of the endless chatter and decided to make his colleagues listen to him a while. He had calculated the value of senatorial time and reduced it to "$200 for every normal beat of the human heart." He resented the imposition of "the indefatigable, inexhaustible and irrepressible orators whose eloquence is losing the Government more than $83,000 an hour."

Hammering the "seven-pound parcel" of the Congressional Record, whose contents, he said, could have been compacted into one seven-hour session, he denominated it "a ponderous repository of useless verbosity," and then read into its record a 34-line verse on the virtues of terse speech. The verse cost the Government, measured in heart beats, approximately $2,500. The press gallery clocked him. Senator Neely consumed $20,000 worth of senatorial time.

Beware Common Sense.

Chicago News.

Sons of the wild jackass now housed under the dome of Capitol well may regard the fall of Mr. Brookhart with pain and apprehension. They have raised their cavernous voices with weird persistence for legislative shams and stupidities without number; can it be that they have raised those voices in vain? They thought they had reason to expect that in a time of economic depression the people would follow them followard with enthusiasm. Yet Brother Brookhart has been sacrificed to mere drab considerations of common sense.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Veteran at Anacostia Camp Declares Maj. Lanier's Emergency Division Scheme Would Help.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the defeat of the soldiers' bonus bill the veterans were not terribly disappointed. As a matter of fact, the stampede on Washington had as much to do with the assumption of food and shelter here as it had to do with hopes of collecting the cash balance of the adjusted service certificates.

The veterans, not being unduly disappointed, will remain here for an indefinite period. They were, and would be again if they should return, a burden to their communities. Misery loves company. Here at Anacostia both are plentiful. Somehow food is available. In America it almost always is. There is nourishment, too, in deep draughts of fresh air and plenty of water. Shelter is of secondary importance.

Since the bonus army is resigned to its fate, that leaves the congressional advocates of the defeated bill holding the bag. The veteran of average intelligence knows that these bonus boosters were pretty largely "dopesters." They "doped" that the bill could never pass anyhow and it would do no irreparable harm to themselves to fight for it and parade in the home town papers as "the soldiers' friends."

Of all the opponents to the bill only one deserves special mention. He is Senator Reed. No hemming, no hawing; in precise, unmistakable English he fought it.

I am out of work, broke, camping at Anacostia. I hope Maj. Lanier's suggestion to organize and incorporate the bonus army as an emergency division of the Regular Army gets some consideration. One year enlistments, military discipline, sanitation rules, ought to merit official attention. Something—if this army remains here—will have to be done. There is the danger of epidemics, maybe other troubles. It is likely we will remain. There is no work at home, no hope, only, intolerable ennui. The family somehow will manage until——

Thirty-three dollars a month in an organized military unit would be a welcome respite, would raise the ebbing morale, would bring the veterans closer to God and country.

All Cossacks' Stanitza Opposes the Recognition of Soviet Regime in Russia.

"The All Cossacks' Stanitza, fraternal and benevolent association, incorporated, are citizens of the United States.

"In regard to the persistent rumor about America's preparedness to recognize Soviet Russia, we beg you to take measures to avert this act, for the acknowledgment of the U. S. S. Is There No Help for the Small Business Man? Mr. Baker Wants to Know.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The depression hits hardest the man in the humbler walks of life and the many businesses privately owned. I am wondering how these people differ from railroads, banks and big corporations, whose representatives may walk into the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and say, "Let me have $500,000 or $1,000,000."

The ordinary business man is allowed credit at his bank only when he has collateral security to cover the amount he wants.

A defunct railroad secured through the Finance Corporation $1,500,000 to keep from going into bankruptcy. If such service can be rendered to big corporations, why can not it apply to the little fellows?

Is there no help for the small business man? HENRY W. BAKER.

Mrs. Ruttencutter Says Bonus Seekers Must Be Fed and Clothed—District People Sympathetic and Generous.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My first visit to the veterans' camp at Anacostia left me with a feeling of shock beyond description at the conditions of the camp.

These 100 per cent Americans are the highest type of manhood to be found anywhere. Many who are here to stay say more are coming. It is our duty to feed and clothe these very deserving American citizens until there is work created for them.

Let the men who are working eight hours a day divide their time with the workless.

I have been begging for these most deserving men and have found sympathy among the people of the District.

MRS. BRADY G. RUTTENCUTTER.

Maj. Lanier Says Bonus Seekers Can Not Be Forced to Cooperate in Emergency Army Scheme.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With reference to my recent letter in The Post, proposing the enrollment of the bonus army as "Emergency Division of the Army," it occurs to me that the inference may be drawn that these men should be so organized regardless of their own wishes. They can not, of course, be conscripted; they would have to voluntarily cooperate in the proposed organization, and it was not my intention to convey any idea to the contrary.

NEW FEDERAL TAXES NOW ARE IN EFFECT

(Associated Press.)

The revenue-producing machinery of the Government began turning faster last night, bringing into the Treasury additional millions under the new tax bill designed to balance the budget for the first time in two years.

When the clock struck twelve the major features of the new measure went into effect, calculated to return $654,000,000 of the $1,118,500,000 additional taxes sought.

Corporation and income taxes are applicable as of January 1, 1932, while certain small items have been in effect since passage of the bill on June 6.

The only taxes remaining to be imposed are those on postal rates and the tax on use of boats, collectively expected to return $160,500,000. These go into effect early in July.

Evasion Attempts Seen.

A threatened loss of $17,000,000 in the one-cent a gallon tax on gasoline due to huge accumulations of stocks by dealers had been met by a House bill to limit such accumulation to 25,000 barrels which the Senate finance committee changed to 40,000 barrels.

Meanwhile, Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, called attention to the need for such legislation already to prevent evasions and said "the collection of this unfair levy will result in national scandals second only to those involving prohibition."

"It must be apparent," he added, "that every means possible, legal and illegal, will be employed to forestall collection of the Federal tax."

Other reports told of the issuance of receipts by banking institutions in lieu of counter checks which, Treasury officials say will frustrate successfully the levy.

Electrical energy is expected to bring in $39,000,000 through an impost of 3 per cent on payments for domestic and commercial consumption, either by private or publicly owned firms. Electricity for industrial consumption is not taxable.

Customer Pays Bank Tax.

The tax on checks, drafts or orders for the payment of money drawn on any banking institution, at the rate of 2 cents per item, will raise $78,000,000 during the year on the basis of Treasury calculations. The banks are to collect the tax and charge it against the depositor's account.

The rates on communications are to be assessed against the person who pays for the services or facilities, at the following rates:

Telephone conversations for which the charge is 50 cents or more and less than $1, 10 cents; $1 or more and less than $2, 15 cents; $2 or more, 20 cents.

Telegraph dispatches and messages, 5 per cent of the amount charged; and

Prohibition Law Blamed For U .S. Tax Increases

(Associated Press.)

Rufus S. Lusk, of the Crusaders, antiprohibition organization, said in a statement last night that with the new tax law in effect "every American will know through his pocketbook what price he is paying for prohibition."

Saying these taxes "which will wring a billion dollars from the American taxpayer" are the direct result of prohibition, Mr. Lusk added that "if liquor were taxed, instead of being outlawed, the Government would collect a billion and a half dollars from this industry, which in spite of the depression, briskly flourishes."

Mr. Lusk said it was significant that "while many States and cities have been able to reduce their taxes, the Federal Government, which until the advent of the eighteenth amendment, obtained about 35 per cent of its income from the liquor tax, has been forced to add further tax burdens to an already oppressed people."

HOUSE ADOPTS FURLOUGH

18 days annual leave and 50 per cent cuts in night pay differentials, were made at the outset of the session.

LaGuardia Plea Loses.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, called on members to vote down the report as a whole, so that they might pass on individual provisions. Economy-weary representatives, however, were in no mood to throw the bill's subject matter wide open to debate. Only 35 stood with Mr. LaGuardia for rejection of the report.

Then Mr. McDuffie put forward his pay-cut plan, disagreed to in conference and voted down by the Senate. He substituted a $1,200 salary exemption for the $1,000 incorporated in the Senate plan. He proposed a scale that would slice salaries 10 per cent up to $12,000, ranging thence from 12 to 20 per cent on salaries over $20,000. For his plan he claimed a saving of $112,500,000.

Representative LaGuardia was quick to raise a point of order. He contended the House views never had been represented in House and Senate conferences. Pointing out that the House had voted for 11 per cent salary cuts with $2,500 exemption, he charged the chamber's conferees had failed to stand by this vote.

Representative John C. Schafer (Republican), Wisconsin, raised a second point. He declared Representative McDuffie had no right to bring in "new material;" that his choice lay rather between the furlough plan voted by the Senate and the 11 per cent salary cut approved by the House.

Both Points Overruled.

Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), Georgia, in the Speaker's chair, overruled both points. He said Representative LaGuardia's contention was based on "speculation." He cited precedents in support of Mr. McDuffie's right to propose "new material."

Representative McDuffie opened his defense of the conference action with a 30-minute statement.

"We feel that an effort must be made to adjust ourselves to the present condition of the country," he said.

"The time has come for everybody to make a sacrifice. Just as in war, every one should be patriotic enough to help. I believe the desire to help is here."

Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, ranking minority member of the conference group, followed with an extended appeal for support of economy recommendations.

"This is your last opportunity to save," he admonished members.

Representative LaGuardia was the first to strike back.

"Have we reached that point when our only method of relieving distress is by creating more distress?" he asked the House.

Appeals for Pay Cut.

There followed a series of short appeals for adoption of the pay-cut plan, varied with arguments for the furlough, in which joined a number of representatives who formerly opposed any salary reduction at all.

Among these was Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), Missouri; Representative Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, chairman of the appropriations committee, who formerly opposed any cuts not based on a sliding scale, and generally was believed to have resigned his House economy chairmanship because of his moderate views, assailed furlough savings as a "will o' the wisp" and urged adherence to the McDuffie pay-cut plan.

Representative C. William Ramseyer (Republican), Iowa, carried the burden of the Republican defense of the furlough plan. It was he who originally sponsored the White House proposal on the floor of the House.

Points to Savings Claimed.

Mr. Ramseyer reminded Republicans they had written a "5-day week" plank in their National platform. The furlough plan is the closest approximation of this in government, he argued. Moreover, it would maintain wage scales, lowered under the McDuffie pay cut schedule. He pointed to the $100,000,000 in savings claimed.

Representative McDuffie countered. The furlough proposal, he charged, is "a wild theory" that no sensible business man would think of applying to his own business." He declared no one could say definitely how much the plan would save.

"In the last analysis this is a pay cut anyway, disguised as a furlough," he declared.

Convinced of the hopelessness of defeating a pay cut of some character, Representative La Guardia at the last minute swung his support to the furlough plan and its five-day week principle "as the lesser of two evils." Then he cast his vote against both plans.

The Tammany delegation almost as a unit voted against both pay cuts and furloughs. Only a few scattered labor votes stood with them in their opposition to furloughs.

There were a number of significant changes, over and above the lowered exemption and the optional pay cut scale, written into the plan by Mr. McDuffie before he offered it to the House for approval.

A notable instance of this was in the impounding provision. As passed by the House the section read:

"The appropriations or portions of appropriations unexpended by reason of the operation of this title shall not be used for any purpose, but shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury."

The furlough plan passed by the Senate did not read this way. It provided instead that unexpended appropriations should not be used "for any purpose except for salary." Department heads could have turned the Senate provision to the benefit of Federal workers.

FURLOUGH MEASURE RAPPED BY STEWARD

Says Provisions Represent Permanent Reduction in Wage Standards.

The President's compulsory furlough plan was altered definitely to the detriment of Federal employes before it passed the House, an organization representative of Federal employes charged last night in a statement.

"Do not accept seriously assurances from whatever source they are made that the so-called economy bill is temporary and applicable to the next fiscal year only," he said in a letter to employes.

"The fact that the bill contains a number of pieces of permanent legislation tearing down the conditions for which Federal employes have worked for many years is substantial evidence in support of the belief, and fully justifies the prediction, that we will have this fight all over again next winter, with attempts at even further inroads on pay and working conditions of the employes."

President Steward saw "sinister possibilities" in the House deletion of Senate language that would have applied furlough savings to employment of additional workers or the retention of those who otherwise would be laid off.

"Your national officers have at no time fallen for the furlough ballyhoo, and have recognized from the outset the evils which underlay the sugar-coated proposal which the President and the heads of the Postal organizations endorsed at a comparatively early stage," the letter stated.

4-H Club to Close Camp Here Today

Members Visit White House and Other Places on Educational Tour.

Delegates to the sixth annual encampment of the 4-H Club yesterday toured the White House, Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Smithsonian Institution, which is the last of the series of educational trips taken by the group.

Members of the camp also visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where they placed a wreath on the grave. The encampment was entertained by the United States Chamber of Commerce last night. The encampment will end today.

James E. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, addressed the delegates on the importance of physical fitness, education, skill and character in the upbuilding of young manhood and womanhood, at a session of the camp on the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution.

FORMER ARLINGTON OFFICIALS REINDICTED BY SPECIAL JURY

April jury only indicted on single charges of misappropriating State funds. The new figures are a picture of four months of work in Arlington County by representatives of the State auditor's department and there were indications last night that the alleged shortages may grow enormously before their investigation is concluded.

Hallock was indicted, as before, only for grand larceny and forgery of $200 in public fundcin public fundstao in public funds.

The special jury, under the foremanship of Preston Dewey, labored seven hours yesterday before returning its indictments at 6:15 o'clock. It called as witnesses State Auditor T. Coleman Andrews and R. B. Jordan and B. L. Hall, of his office.

Former Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth and Deputy County Clark Ralph E. Remington were also called before the jury, but whether they were called in connection with the shortage case, was not divulged.

Ball remained in the Arlington County Circuit Court room most of the day, while the jury deliberated, and Duncan and Hallock were in the offices of their attorneys nearby.

In addition to the old charge of grand larceny of State funds, amounting to $24,454.29, the jury alleged Ball misused and appropriated county funds amounting to $65,300.

Alleged Shortages Divided.

The sums and dates they were taken were alleged by the indictment as follows: July 1, 1931, $20,000; October 16, 1931, $16,500; November 12, 1931; $6,000; November 16, 1931, $2,800; November 27, 1931, $10,000 and December 3, 1931, $10,000.

In addition to the $7,815 figure charged to Duncan by the April jury, this body added two indictments charging misappropriation of county funds. One of these totaled $63,761.70, and the other, $4,450.

The investigation by the State auditor's office, as revealed by the indictment against Duncan, showed that they went over his books from the time he took office in 1920 and covered the period to 1931, inclusive.

The first of these new indictments alleged that Duncan received in that 10-year period in delinquent real estate taxes a total of $228,774.21 which should have been paid to the county treasurer, at least by January 10, 1932.

The indictment stated that the former county clerk did pay in the sum of $162,012.51 which left a balance of $66,761.70 which he did "knowingly and feloniously misuse and misappropriate."

Indictment of Duncan.

The second new indictment charged him with knowingly and feloniously misusing and misappropriating sums as follows: February 5, 1930, $2,000; April 2, 1930, $350; April 8, 1930, $300; April 9, 1930, $300; April 10, 1930, $500; April 14, 1930, $500; April 17, 1930, $500, making a total of $4,450.

Through agreement of counsel, Judge Walter T. McCarthy announced that the three defendants would be arraigned on the indictments Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

State Auditor Andrews refused to comment on the case beyond saying that his men, who have been in the county for four months, are making rapid progress in their work over the books of the trio and expect to have their final reports ready during the June term of Circuit Court.

In addition to the indictments returned against Ball, Duncan, and Hallock, the following were returned: C. D. Duke, a felony; Frederick C. Stelzer, felony in that he is alleged to have obtained an unlawful release of a trust in the clerk's office of Arlington County on September 28, 1926.

Israel Hartstein, felony, held in connection with the death of Harry E. Rodgers the morning of April 23, 1932, in an automobile accident at Rosslyn.

Pollard-Alexander Nuptials In Claremont Manor Today.

Mr. Charles Phillips Pollard, of Washington, and Miss Elizabeth Alexander, of Charlotte, N. C., will be married this afternoon at Claremont Manor, the historic home on the James River of Gen. William H. Cocke, uncle of the bride-elect and former superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute.

Mr. Pollard is the younger son of Gov. John Garland Pollard, of Virginia, and a graduate of George Washington University, having received his law degree at that institution a year ago.

Miss Alexander is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Alexander, jr., of Charlotte and for the past two years has made her home at Claremont Manor, where she first met Mr. Pollard last year. The wedding ceremony will be performed by her grandfather, the Rev. Alexander Galt, D. D., of Norfolk. Her maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Emily Alexander, of Charlotte.

Before entering George Washington University to study law, Mr. Pollard took an academic course at the College of William and Mary, where his father, a former member of the Federal Trade Commission, was dean of the School of Government and Citizenship before being elected Chief Executive of Virginia.

Because of the recent death of Mr. Pollard's mother the wedding will be arranged very simply. His best man will be his brother, Mr. John Garland Pollard, jr., director of the Virginia Commission of the George Washington Bicentennial, who recently married another North Carolina girl, Miss Margaret Fullerton Clarkson, of Charlotte, daughter of Justice Heriot Clarkson of the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

Mr. Pollard's only sister, Mrs. Herbert Lee Boatwright, jr., of Washington, the former Suzanne Pollard, will attend the wedding and the guests will be limited to members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom.

Rose, of the United States Foreign Service, son of Mrs. Halleck Rose, of Omaha, Nebr., and the late Mr. Rose, which took place June 4.

Owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's father, the arrangements for the wedding were informal. The ceremony took place at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the home of Vice Consul and Mrs. Carnes. Blossoms from the famous flame tree of Mexico combined with white lilies made an unusually effective and artistic background for the wedding, which is of particular interest in the Capital, where the youthful bride has made her home with her parents. The bride made her debut two seasons ago and is one of the most popular members of the younger set of Washington. Preceding and very softly during the ceremony violin and cello selections were given.

The bride was escorted by her father, who gave his daughter in marriage. Her wedding gown was charming in simplicity, designed on princess lines of white lace. Her tulle veil was arranged softly in cap effect about her face and held by orange blossoms and she carried a spray of gardenias. The bride had no attendant and the bridegroom had as his best man Mr. Barth Wells, vice consul at Mexico City.

Following the ceremony a reception was held on the steamship Havana, when the guests were members of the American colony at Vera Cruz, where the bridegroom is assigned as vice consul.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Tumulty have leased a cottage at Spring Lake and are established there for the summer. REDEEMING OVERBIDDING.

WHEN you sit down with a comparative stranger to play Contract, it is not enough to know the system of bidding he plays, but it is also important to find out early how he will react to any bidding situation. Some players are prone to underbid; others greatly overbid their holdings. Still another type of player is sadly afflicted with the disease known to Bridge players as "Slamitis"— that is, a proneness to bid for Slams, which are usually makable only in the imagination of the bidder.

A situation of this type occurred in a team-of-four championship contest at Pittsburgh recently. Holding the South hand was Mr. Ray H. Eisenlord, of Erie, and his partner in the North, a very fine player, suffered slightly from the malady referred to above. As a result Mr. Eisenlord found himself embarked on a Slam contract which was difficult, indeed, to make.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding.

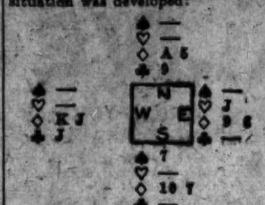
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
4♠(1)	Pass	6♠(2)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—A sound nonvulnerable Preemptive bid. The hand probably will develop 7 tricks in play. Even if doubled and defeated 3 tricks, if partner's hand is a blank, nothing will be lost.

2—North fails to vision the lack of defensive strength shown by South's Preemptive bid, and he daringly decides to try for Slam. West opened the heart King, and continued the suit, the second round being ruffed by the Declarer. In studying his combined holdings, it appeared to him that the making of his contract depended upon two factors—a 4-3 split in the club suit and a successful finesse in diamonds. The adverse trumps were drawn, followed by two rounds of clubs, on the second round a low club being led from Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand. The drop of the Queen by East suggested the improbability of the hope for a 4-3 split in clubs.

There still was a chance to test it out, however, if the diamond finesse won. South, therefore, led a diamond and finessed the Queen, and the lead of the club King disclosed the worst. The suit could not be established. The Declarer returned to his own hand by trumping a club, led the Knave of trumps, and the following situation was developed:



The lead of the last trump squeezed West. He was forced to choose between giving up the club Knave, which would establish the nine in Dummy, or parting with one of his diamond honors, which likewise assured the contract. Hoping his partner might hold the Ten of diamonds, he discarded a diamond. Dummy discarded a club, and the Ace and Ten of diamonds accounted for the last 2 tricks.

North's overbidding had been redeemed by South's carefully worked out plan of play.

TODAY'S POINTER.

In playing the hand at Contract, the good player never gives up, no matter how critical the situation with which he is faced. Remember that your opponents also are human and thus may err.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

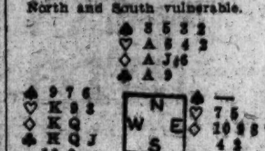
East—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Worth has the happy knack this season of using brightly colored boleros with darker colored frocks. This black georgette model, with intricate tucks as its only trimming, has a bright green wool shantung bolero with it. (Courtesy of the Maison Worth, Paris.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—"If you can't have expensive furs—don't wear any."

Some one or other said that recently—and I heard it, and it struck me as a "bon mot" for fair—and that everyone should somehow be made to realize this pertinent fact.

Now, by expensive furs, one does not exclude the new novelty furs—the shaved "thisis" and "thatis" that trim very expensive and chic coats, make adorable capelets, muffs and things. One means cheap imitations of expensive furs—the black cat, for instance, who has had a few tufts of white fur stuck into him haphazardly, and calls himself—or itself after it becomes a neckpiece—"silver fox." No, no! Frankly novelty furs are quite a different matter—cheap imitations of good furs are simply taboo.

The idea of not wearing any fur at all, or at least good novelty furs, is that such a gesture implies that one has all the furs one wants—and just chooses not to wear them that day. Which, as a matter of fact—is just what you would do if you had plenty of furs!

A tiny, tiny edging of sables—or a tie of ermine—real ermine—or a couple of stone martins, are worth all the huge and silky fox furs put together for real elegance. Or a capelet of shaved lamb, or galliac, that most popular novelty fur. Barring either, one wears nothing at all save a chic and youthful scarf, tied or twisted around the neck—and one is elegant and quite, quite modish!

That is, if one is an elegante—and has the courage of her convictions!

* * * *

Worth has some very interesting fur boleros, with especially novel sleeves. These are quite right for summer—wherever it happens to be cool enough for them. And particularly chic for fall.

* * * *

"Oily to bed and oily to rise——" and that's what makes summer skins pretty and wise—remember. But not too greasy—the sheets don't need skin food!

* * * *

'Twas just an idea—but when one of the Worths of Paris gets an idea, after all the experience that this famous house has had—it's usually a very worthwhile one. So, this season the idea was to wear brightly colored boleros with darker colored gowns. And the idea took. I sketch one of their models today, showing the bolero, which is separate, of course, and has semilong sleeves—the sleeves cover the sleeves of the black georgette gown. The gown depends upon intricate and interesting tucks for its trimming—and it's a Worth silhouette and a Worth cut—so there's nothing more to say. Oh yes, I almost forgot to tell you that the bolero is bright green wool shantung!

* * * *

The last collection of the house of Worth, while we are on the subject, showed bathing suits with wrap-around beach frocks to wear with them. And the printed chiffon and thin silk jacket suits were interesting, and oh, so summery!

Let's play a grown-up hide-and-seek! The telephone rings—now where is the annimule! Well, if you've sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet telling you how to make original telephone hidies, you will guess—otherwise, it couldn't be anywhere but on a table or hiding under the inevitable skirt of the inevitable telephone doll! Nary a doll is there in our ideas for hiding telephones! There are far more artistic ways to hide telephones than that, and all of them are things you can make yourself, this summer. Better look over this leaflet, really.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

YOUR HEALTH AUDIT.

EVERYTHING can be said in favor of the periodic health examination and nothing against it.

To look for medical help when one has an ache or a pain, swollen legs, or indigestion is all right so far as it goes. It is the natural plan, and has been since the beginning of time. When one is in trouble he calls for help. But it is primitive and we, the product of centuries of improvement, should have improved on the method. It was good enough for semi-savages and for animals a little lower than they in the social scale, which means that it is good for us up to a certain point.

The twentieth century man periodically tests his business to discover early troubles, that disaster may not come out of neglect. The farmer looks for evidence that his soil needs a rest, or a change of crops, before a failure comes. Illustrations multiply. We will become a race of centenarians, working vigorously when beyond four-score, when we follow a policy of not permitting disease to go far enough to cause aches, pains, indigestion, or swelling of the legs. These are signs pointing toward well advanced disaster. The need is to learn to understand those signposts which read: Trouble will come here unless precautions are taken.

Persons consult a physician when they are uncomfortable, because of impulse and for other reasons. They have periodical physical examinations because of judgment and foresight.

As times passes and experience accumulates, physicians are learning how to make an examination that is increasingly valuable. They have learned to go about it in a somewhat different way. The routine which is most serviceable when a sick man is being examined for diagnosis is not the best for a periodic physical. May I make a few suggestions as to additional modifications?

First, the examining physician should know the family history. At about what age do the males in this family break down? At what age do they die? What diseases are fatal to them? From what diseases do they escape? What is the record of the females in the same items of information?

Second, what is the health history of the person under examination? Has he had those diseases which run in his family? Has he escaped those that his family escapes? Has he the family build of, possibly, the family personality? How well does he conform to the family type?

Third, what are the exposures of his occupation? On what organs does the subject's work, habits, and kind of life throw an especial strain? In making the examination the examiner should have the answers to these questions in the back of his head, as he proceeds. To do so will increase the value to the person examined.

Fourth, that the examiner be well provided with booklets to give the patient, and with sources of further information to which he can be referred.

Fifth, the examining physician should keep his records of physicals with more than the usual care.

IT DOES NOT MATTER.

J. K. writes: In the room where I sleep there is a large rubber plant, about 6 feet high.

Is it injurious to my health to sleep with this plant in my room? It is beneficial?

REPLY.

It is neither.

Growing plants absorb carbonic acid and give off oxygen, while you absorb oxygen and give off carbonic acid. The air must be reasonably moist or plants will not thrive. However, my opinion is that the presence of the plant would be too small a factor to matter much either way.

HAVE AN EXAMINATION.

H. C. W. writes: I can't go out after dark. If I do, I fall down. I don't feel dizzy, but I am just the same. I can't stand up straight and shut my eyes. If I do, I fall over.

REPLY.

Have some doctor examine you. The first symptom mentioned might mean night-blindness. Night-blindness is sometimes a forerunner of serious eye trouble. Falling over when you stand with your eyes shut is often a symtom of locomotor ataxia, and that is always serious.

CRACKING JOINTS.

Mrs. J. G. A. writes: What makes the bones in the body crack? Mine crack in arms and ankles very much.

REPLY.

It is your joints that crack and not your bones. Cracking joints is evidence of arthritis. If that is the only sign present, it means a very mild and very chronic arthritis—one that should never disable you. Old people have it almost always. They expect to be able to crack, but still to get around until the end of the seventh period of life. Work horses have it.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

How Can I Be Popular Is Question That Young Girls Frequently Ask.

WHILE this is not a beauty subject, strictly speaking, I am constantly receiving so many letters asking the question "How can I be popular?" that a few paragraphs devoted to the subject might not be amiss (even in a beauty column).

The gist of most of these letters is: "I'm not pretty, but not homely either, and less pretty girls have many friends and 'beaus,' while I have none. I want so to attract people."

And I have had young girls come to me and say: "What quality is it, what is responsible for the fact that when two girls from apparently good family, good (or fairly good) looks, manners, clothes, &c., are introduced into a group of desirable young people, one immediately becomes the center of attraction and her life becomes a pleasant round of parties, activities and popularity, while the other suffers in silence and solitude?"

Avoid Affectation.

Some girls make the mistake of trying to force attention by making a too obvious or an artificial effort to do so. Such attention, even if it is attracted, is not the favorable kind. Another mistake is imitating too closely another individual's ideas or ways, particularly if they are foreign to your own, not part of you, not in you.

Do Unto Others.

Also remember the golden rule. Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Make others feel at ease with you, if you would feel comfortable with them. Be kind and thoughtful. Get into the thick of things. Accept invitations, provided they are extended by desirable young people. Don't be "too choosy."

Cultivate an Outdoor Hobby.

Above all, try to cultivate an outdoor hobby. Forget your self-consciousness. Try a new game. Every one does. Every one has the "first trial." Every one makes mistakes. Every one loses sometimes. Don't be afraid to try because of sensitiveness, the fear of blunders or being laughed at. Get into the game whole-heartedly and forget yourself in the spirit of the game. Practice until you become a good golfer, play a fair game of tennis. You will soon be asked to make a foursome at golf or play a set before dinner. Or learn the new conventions and rules of contract bridge and you will be sought as a fourth hand, frequently. Men admire and respect women who can match them in a game of cards and particularly sports. There's health and fun and popularity in riding, swimming and all outdoor hobbies. So cultivate one.

Good Grooming.

And now let me touch on that part of popularity which is definitely within my province. Good grooming. Make the most of your good points. Clothes in harmony with due and proper regard to occasion and fitness (not necessarily an extensive or expensive wardrobe). Well-groomed hands, hair, a subtle touch of rouge, lipstick, occasionally eyeshadow to add to the enhancement of the looks Nature did endow you with. And presto—popularity!

The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

Strawberry Omelet Is Oh—So Good!

IF you want something different by way of a breakfast omelet, Mrs. Kaiser, why not try a strawberry omelet? It's perfectly delicious, and not only is it good for breakfast, but it makes a nice supper dish. Suppose we give you the recipe, that you may make good use of it before strawberries leave the market stalls.

Strawberry Omelet.
(For Mrs. Kaiser.)

6 eggs
1 pint strawberries, washed and hulled
¼ cupful milk
2 tablespoonfuls butter
¼ cupful sugar
½ teaspoonful salt

Cut the larger berries in halves, but do not crush them. Sprinkle with sugar, cover and allow to stand for several hours. Combine the eggs, milk and salt and beat until thoroughly blended. Melt the butter in pan and pour in the egg mixture. Use a spatula to raise the edges of the omelete and tip the pan so the uncooked portions will run under the cooked layer. Continue to do this until all the mixture is cooked. Spread the berries over half the omelet and fold over the other half. Serve on a hot platter garnished with a few whole berries.

WEDNESDAY'S DINNER.

Corn Chowder
Cold Sliced Tongue
French Fried Eggplant
Lima Bean and Bacon Salad.
Orange Frappe
Small Orange Cakes
Iced Tea or Coffee

Corn Chowder.

1 cupful cooked corn, fresh or canned
4 cupfuls milk, hot
2 cupfuls boiling water
2 slices fat salt pork
3 cupfuls boiled potatoes, diced
1 onion, sliced.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Cut the salt pork into small pieces and try it out in hot frying pan. Cook the sliced onion in this and then strain the fat into another pan. Put the potatoes into the strained fat. Add the boiling water, corn and hot milk. Season with salt and pepper, bring to the boiling point and serve hot.

Orange Frappe.

2 cupfuls orange juice
2 cupfuls sugar
4 cupfuls water
Juice of two lemons.

Make a sirup of the water and sugar, boiling for twenty minutes. Add the orange and lemon juice, strain and freeze.

Small Orange Cakes.

1-3 cupful butter
¾ cupful sugar
Yolks of 2 eggs
½ cupful milk
1½ cupfuls flour
2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
¼ teaspoonful salt
½ orange (juice and rind)
Whites of 2 eggs.

Cream the butter and add the sugar gradually. Beat together thoroughly. Beat the yolks of the eggs into the mixture. Sift flour, salt and baking powder and add alternately with the milk. Flavor with the orange juice and rind. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs last and bake in muffin tins. Ice with the following icing:

Orange Icing.

Heat the juice of one-half orange, melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in it and add powdered sugar until of spreading consistency. Add one-half teaspoonful grated orange rind and spread over cakes.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date will be from 9 a. m. to 10:15 p. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:35 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

In spite of its being the longest day of the year, June 21 will not be a day of accomplishment. An unsettled atmosphere will make it difficult to get down to brass tacks, and many unfinished duties will be carried over to tomorrow's ledger. An irritable frame of mind will not be conducive to friendly intercourse or merry social gatherings.

Children born on this June 21 will be full of promise, and as they will be both energetic and ambitious, they will probably be full of accomplishment. They will suffer from know-it-all-itis, but will grow out of this youthful disease into sensible, agreeable young men and women.

If born on June 21 you have an extremely sensitive nature, and every experience, great or small, leaves its mark on your naked spirit. You are suffering from the egotism arising from an inferiority complex. To you everything is so vitally and pathetically personal. You are in the center of all your mental pictures, and it will be to your good when you can eradicate this vision. You lack the protective layers of tolerance, sympathy and understanding. You need to cultivate a philosophy of your own. You need to let the world handle you without its gloves on. For one with such a touchy nature, however, you are extraordinarily obtuse where the feelings of others are concerned, and have anything but a delicate touch or gentle tongue.

You are uncertain of your own judgment, and are too ready to admit that you are in the wrong. Your ears are alert to adverse criticisms, and words of doubt take the starch out of your system. The dim pictures of what might have been fill the galleries of your mind, for you generally regret not sticking to your guns.

If a man, you are more of a home recluse than a club habitue. You enjoy reading or visiting with friends around your own fireside.

Successful people born on June 21: Daniel D. Tompkins, vice president of the United States.

Daniel C. Beard, artist.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

This Is Not Love.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Would you say that this was love?

A man and girl have known each other five years. In that time they have at intervals been separated for long periods, each one going with others at college, &c. Each time they come together again the man demonstrates a violent emotion toward the girl—for the period they are together. From the moment he leaves her until he sees her again, which is sometimes a week and sometimes even longer, he never even phones and would not dream of writing. He appears on the dot as arranged and if the phone rings or anyone else happens in he shows indignation, sulking and being most unpleasant. He declares this is love.

As to gifts. He has never—in five years—given her so much as a 10-cent gift of any kind. She says she does not expect gifts, but if he were a normal human being would he not on some occasions bring her a bar of chocolate or some peanuts just to show he knew what money was for? Granted he has not much cash, would he not do something to indicate he thought of her?

As to behavior. He claims all the rights of an engaged man—his argument being he would marry her if he could. All advice to her as to the lack of wisdom of allowing this man to assume such a position in regard to her seems to fall on deaf ears. She claims she would not marry him any way, admits he has an intolerable disposition, yet sees no reason to give him up, and insists that there is no doubt in her mind that he does love her, and madly, although she is merely temporarily "attached" to him.

Does he "love" her? She has described to me his "love-making" which I would call cave-man stuff. She claims that I do not know anything about love—although I am marrying a man who has stood by my folks through thick and thin, and who would not even now expect me to grant him such opportunities for love-making as this cave-man demands she arrange. (He expects her to see that they have the parlor exclusively to themselves on the nights he parks there, and it is as much as a friend's life is worth to happen in on these sacred occasions.) Which of us is "loved?" TESS.

Of course, the man does not love her—any more than she loves him. They are physical types well-suited to each other, and probably will never experience love or care to. Each harbors a secret contempt for the other in these erotic attachments, which accounts for the fact that the man makes demands, and the fact that the girl gives descriptions of his "love-making." They mean absolutely nothing to each other, have no reverence for each other, no respect for each other. The spiritual element is missing in them.

It has the up-to-the-minute light topped bodice.

It is cut along exceedingly slenderizing lines. Note the slimming becoming V-collarless neckline. The lower part of the bodice also tapers toward the center waistline, thus minimizing the bodice breadth. The skirt, too, gives flat slimness through the hips while the front panel effect lends height to the figure.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

WILD you kindly tell me something about a plant called "ground phlox." Does it require a rich soil? Will it do well in partial shade? Are there many shades of pink? I have seen deep rose and very light pink. When should this plant be set out? MRS. W. B. P.

You no doubt refer to the moss pink or phlox subiata, which rambles over the meadows in the early spring. It is the plant that is so very popular for planting in rock gardens. This little plant may be planted in a dry spot, as it demands little moisture. Phlox subiata can be planted in the spring. The normal color is pink, and in April and early May the clumps are simply covered with myriads of flowers. It will grow in full sun or in partial shade. It does not require a very rich soil.

Please tell me what is wrong with my begonia, of which I am inclosing a leaf. Should the plant be outdoors in summer? I have given it plenty of fertilizer, so it is not lack of food. MISS C. U.

It is likely a case of too much food. A begonia that is planted in a soil composed of good loam, sand and manure, equal parts, requires no additional fertilizer. Set the pot on your porch in a place where it will have early morning sun. Afternoon sun will be too warm for it. If the leaves continue to turn brown, better cut the plant back to the roots. It will soon send forth new growth.

I planted pinks, phlox and pansies in a window-box. The seedlings are all dying. I have kept them well watered and where they get plenty of sun. They are about an inch high and I presume all dead. Please tell me where I made my mistake. MRS. HELEN B.

You have failed to explain just how you planted the seeds. Your soil conditions may have been poor. I can't tell where you made your mistake unless you failed to keep them shaded while they were germinating. They have to have two true leaves before they are ready to be exposed to very much direct sun.

Please tell me how to rid my lawn and garden of ants. I also have several calla lilies which do not bloom. Why do my Canterbury bells always die? What would you advise for a rock garden? MRS. N. D. S.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the name of a proprietary preparation which will soon rid your garden of ants. Calla lilies rarely bloom until they are 2 years old. They require an annual rest and while making growth a great deal of moisture, fresh air and a rich soil. Canterbury bells must never be allowed to become crowded. They like a good, rich soil, and in spring you should dig some fine manure and bonemeal around each plant. They require some winter protection in the form of dead leaves. One authority recommends packing leaves between the plants while the leaves are held together with one hand. This method of protection prevents the crowns of the plants from being flattened by the snow. Most people sow the seed too late. It should be sown any time from May until August. Unless I know whether your garden is in sun or shade I can not recommend a list of rock plants. We have a circular we shall be glad to send you.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SINCE it is a trade and not a fan magazine, and since the "trade" in the case of the motion picture industry is primarily concerned with box-office grosses, the Motion Picture Herald of late has centered its attention upon actual box-office earnings of both players and pictures, rather than upon even the most astute personal or general opinion as to which are the most popular actors and actresses or the most popular films.

A few days ago there was reproduced in this space the first tabulation of results of a questionnaire distributed to the exhibitors of the country requesting them to name the players who had attracted the greatest number of patrons to their theaters. Also in the issue of June 18 of the M. P. Herald appears a brief resume of the pictures that have been declared the "Box-office champions of May," purely on the basis of their earnings—a fair barometer, surely, of the strength and scope of their appeal to the picture-going public.

It is not surprising that the "champion of champions" for the month of May was Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Grand Hotel," peopled by all the stars on the lot—with one or two exceptions! Or maybe it is surprising. "Grand Hotel," as every one who has given the matter any thought must be aware, in comparison with the usual program picture accorded a regular national release, was given a considerably restricted first showing, limited to the key cities, in which it was shown at top prices on a road show basis. It may be argued, of course, that the road show prices—in many instances three or four times the usual cost of the common or garden variety of program picture—made up in money volume whatever box-office intake may have been precluded by the comparatively small number of theaters in which the picture was shown.

The complete list of the six biggest money-getters of the month of May, in the order of their earnings, is as follows: "Grand Hotel," "Letty Lynton," "The Rich Are Always With Us," "Scarface," "State's Attorney" and "The Miracle Man."

In the first place, it would seem to demonstrate that stars of the first flight are not necessarily indispensable to a picture's huge box office success—as witness "Scarface," with Paul Muni in the title role, and "The Miracle Man," with Sylvia Sidney, Chester Morris, Irving Pichel, John Wray, Robert Coogan and Hobart Bosworth.

As was the case in the list of best box office bets among the players, M-G-M has a slight edge in the rating of the May hits, finishing one-two with "Grand Hotel" and "Letty Lynton."

The other four, in the order named, represent First National, United Artists, RKO-Radio and Paramount, with Ruth Chatterton and John Barrymore, the stars of the pictures, appearing in third and fifth positions.

Perhaps the most remarkable tribute to story value is found in the fact that the articulate version of Paramount's "Miracle Man" exerted no less pronounced a public appeal than the original silent version which brought undying fame to the names of George Loanie Tucker, the director; Lon Chaney, Thomas Meighan and Betty Compson, all of whom dated their stellar careers from this production.

Seated in the first row, center, Washington's "song bird of the South" was having a swell time listening to Cliff "Ukulele Ike" Edwards—who also is under the personal management of Ted Collins, the gentleman who has piloted Kate to the heights—when Cliff conceived the noble notion of introducing the home-town girl to those sitting behind her. Aided by a spotlight and a few helpful first-row neighbors, Kate was induced to stand up and take a bow.

And then all the boys and girls on the other side of the footlights had to do was try and get their show started again!

Benny Davis, the celebrated song writer, impresario and master of ceremonies, who brings his "Future Stars" into Loew's Fox on Friday next to supply the stage entertainment for a brief seven days, being by way of a complete general factotum all by himself, will give Baltimore a treat!

I mean to say, with a stage show routined like Benny's there is scant room for anyone not rehearsed and thoroughly broken in with the act, so the Century Theater in Baltimore is borrowing Wesley Eddy for that week.

Wesley will appear with the "Hell's Belles" stage unit in the Monumental City and then will bring that spicy aggregation to F street for their regular booking at Loew's Fox, continuing thereafter in his customary capacity of resident master of ceremonies.

Hells bells my eye! It looks to me like a swell arrangement for all concerned.

In case you remember that there ever was such a thing as a pipe organ in a motion picture theater, you may remember that the one in the Fox was once played for a considerable period by two likely lads by the name of Ron and Don. Well, Ron and Don still are extant.

They are currently appearing as featured console artists at the Warner Brothers Hollywood Theater in Hollywood, Calif. Not that it matters.

Speaking of "Ukulele Ike," at the Earle, Maxine Doyle, the record-holding mistress of ceremonies at the Thirteenth street house, is celebrating another of her recurrent old-home weeks during the engagement. She and Cliff Edwards once appeared in the same Fanchon & Marco unit and she and Velma Wayne, the charming blonde nurse in Edgar Bergen's ventriloquist act, "The Operation," were students in dancing school at the same time and until last Friday had not met in years—thirty or forty at least, I should say!

Miss Katharine Cornell, whose success the past season in Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" has been epochal in a period of depression, evidently has made up her mind to elude a scarcity of vehicles in the months that immediately impend.

In addition to "Alien Corn" and "The Rape of Lucrece," both of which have been announced for next season production, Miss Cornell now has made known that Clemence Dane is writing a play for her around the Bronte sisters, Charlotte, Emily and Anne, the rumor of which several times has been heard.

Although the project has been under Miss Dane's consideration for several months, the actress not yet has received even so much as a first act.

Miss Cornell made her first important New York success in Miss Dane's "A Bill of Divorcement" and also has acted in her "Will Shakespeare" and "The Way Things Happen." She expects to see the playwright in England this summer to discuss the Bronte drama.

Today, by the way, is the longest day of the year, reading from East to West.

Or perhaps it is only all those new taxes you have to pay beginning today that makes it seem so!

CONFEDERATES OPEN 42D REUNION TODAY

Preliminary Events Held at Richmond; Petersburg Park Dedicated.

With the arrival of Gen. C. A. De Saussure, commander in chief, preliminary events were opened with ceremonies accompanying the raising of the Stars and Bars on the wings of the Virginia capitol. Miss Jessica Randolph Smith, of Washington, the official color bearer, and a descendant of the designer of the emblem of the Confederacy, officiated at the exercises.

After being initiated into the Boy Scouts of America as an honorary tenderfoot, Gen. De Saussure and his party went to Petersburg, where he participated in the dedication of the National Military Memorial Park embracing the battlefields over which the engagements leading directly to the downfall of the Confederacy were fought.

Assistant Secretary of War Frederick H. Payne was the principal speaker there. The park was turned over to the War Department by the City of Petersburg.

Standing in the area where the Union Blue and the Confederate Gray fought during the long nine months siege in the final days of the war between the States, Payne said the exercises symbolized the reconciliation of the North and South.

"This park stands not alone, but among its peers as a monument to the past, and a pledge to the future," he said.

Following the address a pageant depicting the entire war period was staged by 1,400 Petersburg citizens, augmented by detachments of the National Guard who reproduced the battles of the area.

Headed by Gen. Desaussure, the aged veterans today took possession of the city, which once was their capital, with hundreds of visitors arriving for the convening triple event—the Confederate reunion, the meeting of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and the convention of the Confederated Southern Memorial Association. The sons and the association will formally open their meeting tomorrow, but the formal welcome for the veterans by Gov. Pollard will not be given until Wednesday.

GLEN ECHO PARK

The cool weather over the week-end did not dampen the ardor of Glen Echo fans, judging from the attendance records. The popular park continues to draw them like a circus in a country town, and Saturday and Sunday was no exception.

The roller coaster, airplane swings and thrillers galore sang their song of pleasure as they breezed through the Maryland atmosphere with plenty on board. The old mill, midway, dodgem rides, shooting galleries and other amusements were clicking along also with plenty of admirers.

In the crystal pool, it was a case of business as usual, and although the temperature was somewhat below normal, patrons found the water none too cold for enjoyment. Saturday evening, of course, the weather was made to order for the large crowds of dancers who flocked to the ballroom for the entertainment provided by MacWilliams and his orchestra from 8:30 until 11:30 p. m.

High School Students Gather for Convention

Several hundred students in the District and vicinity are expected to have registered by tonight for the first annual convention of the American High School Student Association, which convenes tomorrow for a three-day session at the Washington Hotel, according to Ralph Boyer, chairman of the national committee. Delegates from many States are scheduled to be on hand for the general organization of the association.

The convention here is sponsored by the American High School Journal, with the cooperation of a national school committee, the Greater National Capital Committee, the United States and District of Columbia George Washington Bicentennial Commission and State Societies of the District.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

NATIONAL

"AS HUSBANDS GO." Stephen E. Cochran and Clifford Brooke present the National Theater Players in a play in prologue and three acts by Rachel Crothers. Staged by Mr. Brooke; scenery by Charles Squires.

By NELSON B. BELL.

The fact that the National Theater Players are presenting as their final offering of the spring and early summer season of repertoire a comedy-drama that constituted one of the regular season's bookings only a few months ago in no way diminished the enthusiasm of last evening's large audience, to many of whom the Rachel Crothers play was wholly familiar.

In fact, many seemed to find added zest in the opportunity to compare the present admirable production with the John Golden original which played Washington as the second production of the Theater Guild's third subscription season. Such comparison was by no means disadvantageous to the current entertainment. If anything, this last of the series of ten Cochran-Brooke "little season" productions surpasses its predecessor in the matters of tastefulness and completeness of settings. It is furthermore sufficiently well acted to lend full value to the sprightliness, humor and homely virtue so deftly and generously written into the script by the author.

The brief prologue, it will be recalled, is set in a smart Parisian cafe at 4 in the morning. An Iowa widow and her young married traveling companion are to sail for home within a few hours. Caught up in the glamour of continental Europe and the blandishments of a crumbling ruin of a waning aristocracy and a brilliant young Britisher addicted to writing verse and an occasional novel, each succumbs to the romantic urge of the moment and lets herself in for a deal of subsequent trouble—the widow with her flip young daughter, the more or less dutiful wife, with her patient husband awaiting her return to the outskirts of Dubuque.

Hippolitus Lomi, the ancient roue, reluctant to relinquish the imminent prospect of sharing Emmie Sykes' fortune, accompanies the two to the Lingard home in Midwest America. Ronald Derbyshire, the writer fellow, who has so ardently wooed Lucille Lingard, follows five weeks later. It is from the resultant complications, precipiated by the shrewd intuitions of Charlie Lingard, that such verve as the play possesses is generated.

There is humor aplenty, and no little dramatic substance, packed into the prologue and three acts of this interesting but not especially explosive contrast of Parisian and Dubuquean modes and morals. The greater burden of both is borne by the role of Emmie Sykes, played by Katherine Givney with all of the effectiveness and none of the affectation that marked the performance of another Catherine, yclept Doucet, in the same role, on the same stage, last November. This is the most fruitful role Miss Givney has had and serves as a belated demonstration of how resourceful an actress she really is.

Leona Powers finds the character of Lucille Lingard easily within her grasp and rather in the nature of a respite from the arduous tasks that have fallen to her lot with such unfailing regularity these past ten weeks. Ona Munson, as Peggy Sykes, contributes by far her most vivacious and most engaging performance of the stock season, glib poised and charming.

Raymond Bramley gives a thoroughly good account of himself as the doting and sagacious husband, originally played by Jay Fassett, and Forrest Orr and Donald Woods appear as "Hippy" and "Ronnie," the overseas interlopers. Particularly well done was the drinking scene between Mr. Bramley and Mr. Woods. Burke Clarke, Adelaide Hibbard, Freddie Sherman, Karl Nielsen and Frank Westbrook appear creditably in minor roles.

Following the final curtain the company received no less than an ovation. Clifford Brooke, responding to the tumult, expressed the thanks of his associates as well as the hope that they all would be back next year—a suggestion that touched off another round of enthusiasm!

SCHMELING 5-4 CHOICE TO BEAT SHARKEY TONIGHT

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE paths of Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey cross again in the 24-foot battle ground at Long Island City, and the meeting holds the answer to a series of doubts built up around the German and the former gob.

The battle will answer the question of Sharkey's erratic temperament which he claims to have bonquered in the training for his second bout with Schmeling, and it will answer the mooted question of Schmeling's improvement since he won the title sitting down after a foul in the bout at Yankee Stadium two years ago.

A few hours after the Ludington line deposits this department somewhere within cab fare of the Garden's new bowl, I expect to see the title returned to America on the crest of Sharkey's victory either by a decision or a knockout, probably the former.

It is difficult to shove into the background the spectacle of the present world champion absorbing an artistic beating at the hands of tonight's challenger two years ago, before Sharkey was unfortunate enough to loosen a low punch to the German's body and lose a title that appeared to be firmly in his grasp.

Sharkey enters tonight's bout with every advantage over the German with the exception of stamina and Schmeling's calmness in the heat of battle. He has the edge of experience, boxing ability and stiffer punching. He should be able to keep out of range of Schmeling's attack and box his way to an easy decision, if he is satisfied with that kind of a victory.

But Sharkey's mental acrobatics comprise the greatest hazard to America's chances of regaining the title that tradition has always associated with America. Sharkey's career is a chain of wasted opportunities in which he failed to take advantage of his natural and native assets, but if he can put these behind him and fight the kind of a fight that he can, Schmeling's stamina alone will not defeat the former sailor.

For the first time since he leaped into the static limelight by beating Mary Wills when Dempsey or any other white heavyweight would have no truck with the Black Menace, Sharkey gives evidence that he will fight a serious fight.

Previously his training campaigns have been marked by blatant outbursts and predictions of destruction to his foes, but tonight, he says, he will fight a deliberate, well-planned battle that will not go awry. That is the kind of a fight that will win for Sharkey.

Sharkey is not asking the public to take his word that he is in dead earnest this time. He points out that he is fighting for a meager 10 per cent, only a tithe of what he netted in less important fights in the last few years. It's the vindication and the glory that he wants, he says.

Schmeling wiped away a goodly portion of the doubts that surrounded his championship ability when he stopped Young Stribling in fifteen rounds, but the public has been slow to accept the rugged German lad as a worthy champion in view of the manner in which he came into the title. Tonight will tell.

Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Lou Gehrig and the rest of the boys who are liable to hit home runs will set about today attempting to balance Uncle Sam's budget, wipe out the national deficit and aid generally in the reconstruction program.

For, starting today, the United States Government will net 12½ cents on every home run and foul ball into the stands as a result of the new Internal Revenue tax of 10 per cent on sporting goods and equipment. The balls cost the big league clubs $1.25 each and for every ball that falls into the hands of the fans or drops over the fences, the Government earns a tenth of the cost of a new sphere.

Van Mungo, Brooklyn, Repulses Pirates, 2-1

Brooklyn, June 20 (A.P.).—Young Van Mungo, of the Dodgers, and Bill Harris, of Pittsburgh, hooked up in a mound duel here today that was not decided until the seventh inning, when Joe Stripp delivered a pinch single that licked the Pirates, 2 to 1.

Each pitcher yielded only six hits, and in only one inning was either club able to bunch more than one blow.

Myer Defeats Indians, 3-2, By Homer

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

LEAGUE PARK, Cleveland, Ohio, June 20. With a second division berth yawning beneath them like a chasm in case they slipped today, the Nationals grabbed a firm foothold and downed the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 2, to climb over the Tribe and back into third place in the league standing.

Wesley Ferrell, ace of the Indians' flinging staff, was on the hill for the home crew and he had much the better of his duel with "General" Alvin Crowder as regards the number of hits he allowed, winning 9 to 5, but the Washington hurler was as tight as a Pullman car window in the pinches and deserved the victory, his ninth of the season.

It was a home run by Buddy Myer with Joe Judge on first as the result of a pass he drew in the fifth, which was decisive for the Nationals. This enabled them to come from one down to one up and Crowder and his supporting cast saw to it that this small lead was sufficient. It was fortunate that they did for, after Myer's blow, Ferrell retired the Nats in order over the balance of the route—15 in all.

Ferrell Has Little At Start.

Ferrell, seeking his thirteenth triumph of the season, appeared to be anything but right. He had no speed on his fast ball and gave up using it, while he seemed to be laboring from start to finish. Yet, he managed to hold the Washington pill-pounders to but five hits. Even so, the Nats were in the lead after scoring in the second, except for about five minutes between the ending of the fourth and the beginning of the fifth.

West doubled prying the top off of the second session and Bluege's sacrifice sent him to third. He registered on Berg's grasser to Burnett, which the latter could not quite get to. Catcher Sewell in time for the killing.

Poor coaching by Charley Jamieson prevented the Tribe from knotting the string in the third on Porter's single and Averill's double, but it temporarily took the lead in the next round on Sewell's double, Kamm's triple over West's head, and Cissell's useful out.

Hardly had the cheering died down, when the Nats staged their rally. Judge, new lead-off man in a Washington batting order series of shifts, coaxed the only walk Ferrell issued during the game when first up in the fifth. Myer then came with a mighty looper over the screened wall in right field, and as things turned out, the teams might just as well have called it a day then and there, for there was no more scoring.

Indians Threaten In Seventh.

As already mentioned, the Nats never got a man on base thereafter, while the Tribe threatened seriously but once. This was in the seventh when, with one dead, singles by Ferrell and Porter put men on third and first. Neither runner was able to advance on Burnett's short fly to Manush, however, and then Averill lofted to left for the third out.

With only a one-run lead, and in a park where homers are not particularly hard to hit, judging from the number made here each season, the Nats were on their toes and worried until the very end. With one out in the ninth, Cissell singled, but this was marked "not used" by Ferrell and Porter, each of whom died on a fly to West.

Myer, of course, was the Nats' batting hero of the day, but Judge came a close second, getting a double, single and walk in four times at the tee. Porter, with three singles, was the only other player on either team to hit safely more than once. Besides his game-deciding homer, Myer contributed a catch in the fifth which helped Crowder out of a hole, while a near-shoestring catch by Manush in the seventh came just ahead of two singles and, of course, played a big part in deciding the game.

In the Wake Of the Game

Special to The Washington Post.

LEAGUE PARK, Cleveland, Ohio, June 20.—Lloyd Brown, the Nats' most successful pitcher on this trip, will draw the Washington box assignment in the second game against the Indians tomorrow. He probably will find Jack Russell, quite a nemesis against the Washingtonians while with the Boston Red Sox, opposing him. Victory is needed or the Nats again will drop back into fourth place and possibly fifth.

A combination of Cleveland schoolboys and the "Huck Finn" Playground Association made up a crowd of about 27,000 here today, only about 2,500 being cash customers.

Three semipro players reported to Manager Johnson and were given so-called trials before today's game. They were Edward Kennedy, a third

Golden Bears Win Crew Crown

Far Westerners Lead From Start: Washington Third.

By ALAN GOULD.

The Golden Bears from the Far West, with the Olympics as their goal this year and their world championship to defend on home waters, scored a smashing triumph this evening over seven rivals in the 4-mile varsity feature of the intercollegiate regatta.

Rowing as if inspired by the twin incentives that beckon them to international honors, the powerful California eight took command of the big race from the start, jumped into an unexpected lead and easily withstood Cornell's last mile challenge to win by 2½ lengths from the Ithacans, runners-up for the second consecutive year.

Bears' Superiority Clear-Cut.

There was not the slightest argument about California's superiority. The Golden Bears failed by more than a minute to touch their own course record, made in 1928, but they busted wide open what had figured to be one of the closest varsity battles down the Hudson in years.

Cornell alone of the Eastern contenders put up any kind of a sustained fight to head off the flying Far Western craft, but the Ithacans, for the second straight year, staged their closing spurt too late to make up the big gap. Cornell sliced at least a length from California's margin in the last mile, but the Bears had plenty in reserve to meet this challenge.

Washington finished third, two lengths back of Cornell and a length in front of Navy, 1931 champion, which in turn had a length and a half over Syracuse, the "hot" prerace favorite. Columbia, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Tech brought up the rear, with Tech so far behind that it was passed by the referee's boat.

The failure of Syracuse's highly favored varsity to do better than fifth, fading badly in the last stages of the race not only was a big shock to the dopesters, but spoiled the great chance of the Orange to sweep the river.

Syracuse won the first two races for freshmen and junior varsity crews so handily that her supporters were stirred to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Old Man River was as placid as a mill pond, with only a slight upstream breeze stirring, as the eight boats lined up and shot away to a perfect start on schedule.

All the favorites were close to each other in the shore positions so that there was no secrecy in California's fast getaway. The Golden Bears were a good half length in front of the field, otherwise closely bunched, within the first mile, and they hit up a pace that quickly separated them by open water from all rivals.

Columbia Follows Early Pace.

Columbia hung close to the pace, surprisingly, for the first mile and a half. Washington then took over the job of leadership in the chase after California. Cornell it appeared, was for the second straight year focusing its attention mostly on Syracuse, but when the Orange showed no signs of moving to the front, the Ithacans decided it was time they went out by themselves.

California passed the two-mile mark with a lead of more than three lengths, however before Cornell applied the pressure, caught Washington and made its closing bid. Going into the last mile, California still had an advantage of two and a half lengths, however and this proved more than sufficient.

Washington, while unable to match Cornell's fast finish had enough to hold off the Navy by a good length. Syracuse failed altogether to justify expectations, being passed by Cornell and then by Navy in the last mile and a half. The Middies had open water between its stern and Syracuse's bow at the finish. Columbia was two lengths back of Syracuse and about as far ahead of Pennsylvania. M. I. T. was more than eight lengths back of Pennsylvania.

VINES WINS WIMBLEDON DEBUT

By FRANK H. KING.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 20 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines, jr., showed Wimbledon fans the strokes that carried him to the top of the 1931 American rankings, defeating E. Du Plaix, promising French youth, in the first round of the English tennis championships today.

Even with more errors than any American title holder ever displayed on the famous center court, Vines stormed through his French opponent in straight sets, winning 7—5, 6—3, 6—4, to lead the parade of the favorites through the opening round of play.

Sidney Wood, who won the title last year by default from his fellow countryman, Frank Shields, experienced little difficulty in eliminating A. M. Wedd, Cheshire champion, 6—2, 6—2, 8—6. Mangin the American indoor titleholder, turned back L. Hecht, of England, with the loss of only four games. The score was 6—1, 6—0, 6—3.

Cochet and Borotra Also Extended.

Cochet, strong favorite to win the title, had a lively brush with P. H. Partridge, of England, before winning, 7—5, 6—3, 6—2. Borotra was carried to five sets before he managed to defeat his young countryman, Andre Merlin, 0—6, 6—1, 1—6, 6—4, 6—2. Merlin won the first set in the record time of seven minutes.

Vines' debut on the center court was far from a brilliant one, but the English gallery generously applauded the potentialities of his great game, which has yet to hit its stride on the English courts. His playing was marked by erratic tennis, with just enough sound spells to win.

The American delegation swings into action in full force tomorrow, with Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, favorite to win the woman's title; Frank Shields, Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison playing their first matches, and Vines, Wood and Mangin taking on the second-round opponents.

Mrs. Moody's first match will be against Miss M. R. Couquerque, of Holland, while Shields meets P. Grand Guillot, a Frenchman entered from Egypt; Van Ryn matches strokes with C. H. Kingsley, and Allison opposes G. E. Tuckett, of Great Britain. Vines' second-round opponent will be H. S. Burrows, of England, with Wood meeting I. H. Wheatcroft, also of England, and Mangin opposing C. Sproule, of Australia.

Zachary Hurls Braves To 3-2 Win Over Reds

Boston, June 20 (A.P.).—The Boston Braves gained their first victory of the year over the Cincinnati Reds today as they took an eleven-inning pitchers' battle, 3 to 2.

Tom Zachary had a little the better of Red Lucas, being invincible in all but the seventh inning. Art Shires, Braves' hustling first baseman, was spiked in the fifth while sliding into second and was carried from the field. By the win, the Braves moved to within 1½ games of the leading Cubs.

McManus Sets Seventh Place As This Year's Goal of Red Sox

DETROIT, June 20 (A.P.).—Martin Joseph McManus, acting manager of the Boston Red Sox following the resignation Sunday of John Shano Collins, today said that he had "set seventh place" as the goal for the Red Sox this year.

"The club is so far behind that our only chance is to reach seventh place," McManus, a former Tiger infielder, said. "I am convinced that we have a better outfit than the White Sox, and maybe we can pass them before the season closes."

McManus said he did not expect to make any changes in the club until he had a chance "to study things out."

"I'll say one thing, though," he added, "and that is there won't be any strict discipline. I'll try to enforce the rule that requires all the players to be in bed by midnight, but otherwise they'll have a lot of leeway. I'd rather have an enterprising ball club that made mistakes now and then than to have one scared to death to take chances in the pinches."

McManus said that Collins withdrew as manager because of ill health rather than any dissatisfaction with the owners.

"Shauno was in bad shape physically," he said. "He worried a lot, and couldn't sleep at night. Finally he decided that no job is as important as his health."

MACKS BEAT CHICAGO IN SLUGFEST

Cramer Makes 6 Hits, Foxx 27th Homer in 18-11 Victory.

CHICAGO, June 20 (A.P.).—Philadelphia's Athletics let loose with all their heavy guns today to win a slugging match from the Chicago White Sox 18 to 11.

The firing included Jimmy Foxx's twenty-seventh home run of the season. But the leading bateman of the American League had to split hitting honors with Roger Cramer, who connected safely six times in as many times at bat to tie the junior circuit record for a day's hitting. The record often has been tied, but it had not been done since Ty Cobb did it for the Detroit Tigers in 1925.

Foxx's drive came in the seventh inning during a three-run uprising, clearing the high wall in left-center. It was one of the longest homers ever accomplished at Comiskey Field, the other having been made by this same Foxx last season.

Faber Batted Out Of Box.

The A's went right to work on Red Faber in the first inning and batted him out of action before a man could be retired. They scored four runs in the opening inning, but that was only a suggestion of what was yet to occur. Art Smith came next and lasted into the second inning before a three-run raid sent him after Faber.

Pete Daglia and Pat Caraway lasted 6½ innings between them, and Arthur Evans, late of Independence, Kans., finished and was not scored upon.

Tony Freitas, recruit from the Pacific Coast League, started for the Athletics, but failed to get past the second inning, when the Sox showed signs of hitting. Lew Krausse replaced Freitas, but was hammered out in the seventh, and Eddie Rommel finished. Krausse received credit for the victory.

The Philadelphia batsmen ran out 8 bases' worth of hits, while the faint-hitting White Sox collected 18 hits, good for 26 bases.

Odds Shift as Bout Nears With 60,000 Expected to Witness Battle for Title

Sharkey to Have Ten-Pound Advantage Over German; May Depend on Boxing Ability to Win a Decision.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, June 20 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling was a 5 to 4 favorite tonight to retain his heavyweight championship against Jack Sharkey in their fifteen-round title bout tomorrow night at Long Island City.

A wave of Schmeling money this evening shifted Schmeling back into the favorite position, after the wagering had been at even money during most of the afternoon, according to Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner.

"Out-of-town money has swung Schmeling back into the preferred spot," Doyle explained. "Schmeling money is coming from Western cities and the South. Betting during the afternoon was mostly among local gamblers. I can't tell what the odds will be at ring time; they are shifting about so rapidly as the betting freshens."

Doyle said the odds were 2 to 1 against Schmeling winning by a knockout, and 3 to 1 against Sharkey winning by a kayo.

The champion arrived tonight from his training camp at Kingston, N. Y., accompanied by his manager, Joe Jacobs, and Max Machon. They went to a private residence on Long Island, where Max will remain until weighing-in time tomorrow.

Sharkey Loafs About Hotel.

Sharkey loafed about his downtown hotel, read a little and took a couple of walks in Central Park, accompanied by his rotund manager, Johnny Buckley. The challenger will remain at the hotel until weighing-in time.

Bert Stand, secretary of the New York Boxing Commission, announced the fighters would weigh in between 1 and 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. "And I think they will appear at the commission's headquarters at the same time," he continued. "I see no reason why they should not."

The eve of the battle found visitors arriving from other sections of the country and well-known "sports" from other cities had begun to put in appearance.

President William F. Carey, of Madison Square Garden, announced the total gate for the fight would range between $360,000 and $440,000. He said he was certain about 60,000 fans would swarm into the new bowl for the bout.

Sharkey will have at least a ten-pound advantage when he climbs through the ropes tomorrow night, Manager Buckley said he weighed about 208 pounds and that he was eating whatever he liked and was not worrying about his weight. He expected him to be at about 203½ pounds tomorrow.

Schmeling Weighs 191 Pounds.

Sch...ing tipped the scales at 191 after his last workout at Kingston. He may add a pound or two before stepping onto the scales tomorrow, Schmeling has the advantage in years. He is 26, and Sharkey is 29.

When questioned about Sharkey's plan of battle, Buckley exclaimed, "This battle plan talk is all bunk. Sharkey never knows what he's going to do until he gets into the ring. He'll take Schmeling as he finds him. And when I say 'take him' I don't mean maybe. Jack is absolutely confident of winning. In fact he already has completed plans for his career as champion."

Despite all the talk of Sharkey attempting a quick knockout over the German, most of the smart fight managers in cauliflour alley believe Jack will try to coast through the fifteen rounds and depend on his superior boxing ability to win the decision. And they believe Sharkey can do just that thing if he doesn't lose his head and try to slug with the champion.

But they are afraid that Sharkey will not be able to remain calm against the dark-haired Teuton, whom he hates more than any living man. They fear that Jack may try to puncture the Schmeling myth with a knockout, leave his own chin exposed and hit the canvas for the ten-count. Sharkey feels that Max "stole" the title from him two years ago by claiming foul, and he wants vengeance.

Managers to Be in Corners.

Manager Jacobs, Trainer Machon and Doc Casey, famous second, will be in Schmeling's corner, while Manager Buckley, Trainer Al Lacey and Trainer Tony Polozolo will work behind Sharkey.

Gomez in 13th Win; Yankees Score, 3-1

Browns Held to 3 Hits as Hebert Loses Brilliant Mound Duel.

St. Louis, June 20 (A.P.).—Welly Hebert gave Vernon Gomez a powerful argument for nine innings today, but in the end the Yankee sensation defeated the Browns, 3 to 1, for his thirteenth triumph in fourteen games this season.

PLAYDALE NEVER HEADED IN WASHINGTON PARK FEATURE

Shaffer Colt Wins From Favorite

Bub McFarland Is Third in Mile and Eighth Test.

Coucci Scores With Semphore at 7-1 at Aqueduct.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 20 (A.P.).—Scores of women who were delegates to the Republican national convention were among the 14,000 spectators here this afternoon who enjoyed the sport, and several of the events were named after women prominent in Illinois politics.

The top race, the fifth on the program, at 1⅛ miles, was won by C. B. Shaffer's Playdale, ridden by Jockey M. Lewis. Swift and True was second, and Bub McFarland, favorite, finished third.

Playdale led all the way, covering the distance in 1:51 4-5. The winner paid $9.82.

Mills and Coucci Win at Aqueduct.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 20 (A.P.).—Hank Mills and Silvio Coucci, apprentice jockey stars, who monopolized the spotlight over the week-end when they brought their respective mounts home victorious in the Brooklyn Handicap and the American Derby, both received an ovation from local patrons here this morning and before the program was four races old, each had ridden a winner. After Coucci guided Semaphore home in the second contest, Mills booted Ormesby to victory in the Olambala Handicap, feature offering.

Ormesby, 9-to-5 favorite for the 1-mile test, carried the Belair Stud silks home by a half length over Frank Grossman's Waterway. Reveille Boy was third, two lengths behind. The time was 1:38 2-5.

JOE AND ASBESTOS

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code)

—By Ken Kling

Broad Bill ran second for Asbestos yesterday. Wasn't that too bad? The bank roll lost $2 and is now $50.35. Today he is playing two who very few will give a chance to win.

BROAD BILL was used up getting to the lead of GLYNSON in early running and had little left at end. CAPTAIN JOY made a game finish. PARTING SHOT was in early trouble and closed a big gap. Others were outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUNNY BOY, $15.36, $8.80, $4.74; PREDICT, $5.68, $4.00; PHAELDALE, $7.34.

DUNNY BOY went to the front soon after the start and, holding a short lead over PREDICT all the way, raced gamely to the finish. PREDICT was closest to the pace most of the way and held PHAELDALE. Latter was in close quarters on far turn. LONELL showed a fairly good effort. ADSUM, lacking early speed, turned in an exceptionally poor performance and was never a factor. THE WHIG made up ground.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:26½. Off at 3:29. Winner, M. B. Cohn's dk. ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LILLIAN Z., $11.82, $5.22, $3.78; STIMOWAY, $7.96, $5.18; HOPULIKIT, $3.22.

LILLIAN Z. went to the front at once and, under a good ride, withstood several challenges to show the way to the end. STIMOWAY, never far from the pace, saved all possible ground and held on gamely. HOPULIKIT met some interference in stretch and tired some going well at end. VOLTINA saved much ground around stretch turn to reach a contending position, but faltered after making a brief challenge when straightened out in the stretch. WARBLE had early speed. Others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:04½. Off at 4:08½. Winner, Northway Stable's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNDOT, $10.00, $5.18, $3.74; ERVAST, $5.06, $4.38; BACKLOG, $9.48.

SUNDOT, close to the pace at all times, responded gamely to hard urging in stretch and, racing to the lead in final sixteenth, held ERVAST. Latter, shuffled back early, came again in stretch and was gaining at finish. BACKLOG, showing fine early speed, raced SUPREME SWEET into defeat, but could not last. CAMP ROSE, in front early, probably needed the race. STREET SINGER closed with a rush. DON LEON met some interference and was never a serious threat. SUPREME SWEET stopped badly in last furlong.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Durango. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:38½. Off at 4:42½. Winner, Colstream Stable's b. h. (5), by My Play—Brookelyn. Trained by W. B. Mitchell. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLAYDALE, $9.82, $4.52, $2.96; SWIFT AND TRUE, $4.62, $16.10; GARLIC, $12.72.

PLAYDALE went to the lead after start and, racing well, was never headed, holding SWIFT AND TRUE at the finish. SWIFT AND TRUE followed the pace under restraint, but although gaining on the winner at end, could not get up. BURN MAPLAND went well and was seeking traffic at finish. GARLIC saved ground in the stretch. BARNEY SEXTON seemed a trifle outclassed. DURANGO propped at start and went to his knees in landing and was outrun all the way.

SIXTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:14. Off at 5:15. Winner, J. Hanover's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TREK $46.22, $16.46, $8.36; BUNCH OF LILIES, $6.10, $4.32; BEN BLAIR, $4.98.

TREK, suddenly improved, was never far from the pace and, taking a good lead after swinging for home, drew out to hold away to the end. BUNCH OF LILIES made up ground steadily and finished fast. BEN BLAIR was in close quarters on inside on far turn and showed well. CHIP raced on outside all the way and closed strongly. LAST ATTEMPT and WHITE LEGS tired in the stretch. TYPHOON, weakly handled, bore out in the early running.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:48. Off at 5:49. Winner, R. P. Watts' b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRAFFIC JUDGE, $59.50, $20.90, $14.48; LADRONE, $6.26, $4.56; HALF WAY, $11.50.

TRAFFIC JUDGE went to the front after going half the distance and, saving ground in the stretch, opened up a long lead to win handily. LADRONE gained ground gradually and finished fast on the outside. HALF WAY went well and was going gamely at finish. PLUTARCH weakened near end. ORMONTIME lacked speed and raced poorly. TIGER FLOWERS, pocketed all through the back stretch run, had little chance and can do much better. TEA GREEN raced wide and poorly. BOBBY POWERS and BLACK WEST dropped back when real racing began. Others were never dangerous.

Pitcher Al (Tommy) Thomas reported to the Nats slightly overweight and Manager Johnson is doing out plenty of work for him getting him into condition. He may draw his first start here Wednesday.

The Nats' fourth was the first time either team was retired in order. It was not until the sixth that the Tribe was three up and three down.

Porter's hot roller opening the home fifth caught in the webbing of Crowder's glove and he had to yank it out before making the peg to first.

Myer raced over behind second to make a good stop to end the alien fifth. It robbed Vosmik of a hit which would have advanced Burnett to third.

Amateur Boxing Show Here, Plan

An amateur boxing carnival, to be held at Griffith Stadium some time after the Fourth of July, is being planned to further the success of the District Olympic Finance committee, which has pledged itself to raise $5,000 as this city's quota of Olympic expenses.

It was revealed yesterday that plans for the amateur boxing card, on which would perform many of the country's leading Simon-pure fighters, were in progress some weeks ago, but were checked by the bonus fund bouts staged at the instigation of Chief of Police Glassford.

The local committee, of which Vice President Charles Curtis is honorary chairman, and Arthur Carr, acting chairman, has not relinquished its platform which frowned upon the raising of the funds by subscription.

Lawrence and Broaddus Win A. A. U. Diving Titles

By BOB CONSIDINE.

KNIFING down out of the searchlight-speckled air into the molten emerald of Glen Echo's Crystal Pool, Onalene Lawrence and Johnnie Broaddus last night thrilled a crowd of 1,000 as they dove their way into the women's and men's District A. A. U. high board diving championships. Miss Lawrence, more than reestablishing her right to represent Washington in the Olympic tryouts later in the year, engineered a stirring comeback to beat out Lois Bates, the diminutive little rival who beat her for the lowboard championship last month. The division of points between Miss Lawrence and Miss Bates was 133.58 to 130.

Broaddus, who also holds the lowboard championship (and is the District A. A. U. 145-pound wrestling champion), beat out a splendid field of performers to win the men's event, nipping Bob Knight and Norman Smith by comfortable margins.

It was the girl divers that stole the show, however. The rivalry between Contestants Lawrence and Bates is becoming a legend in local swimming, but last night even the inexperienced in the stands could tell who won the championship long before the judges had waded through their complex-compound computations. Miss Lawrence, more confident than ever, reeled off her compulsory and voluntary dives like a thoroughbred. In the air Miss Bates virtually equaled her, except in height off the board, but there was little comparison when the two hit the water. Miss Lawrence was as close to perfect as seems possible in this tricky sport. Her backward spring forward one and one-half somersault brought an ovation.

STARS SCORE IN COLLEGE TENNIS

C. Sutter Leads Rush of Seeded Players at Haverford.

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 20 (A.P.). Twelve seeded stars and twenty other top favorites swept through to the third round in the first day's play of the national intercollegiate tennis championships at the Merion Cricket Club today.

Not an upset marked the first two rounds, although two young stars who have risen recently, fell before the superior play of seeded veterans. Jack Tidball, of the University of California at Los Angeles, defeated William Jacobs, of Pittsburgh, and Bryan Grant, of North Carolina, downed Edward Sutter, of Tulane.

Keith Gledhill, of Stanford, the defending champion, had an easy day. After drawing a first-round bye he quickly crushed Robert Jacobs, of Dickinson, in love sets.

Clifford Sutter, of Tulane, seeded No. 1, dropped only four games in two matches, while Richard T. Murphy, of Hamilton, made an equally impressive showing by allowing his two opponents only two games. Murphy is seeded No. 4.

The other seeded stars breezed through without the loss of a set, and at the end of the day Texas, Columbia and North Carolina each had three men left in the play, and Harvard, Stanford, Navy, Rice, California at Los Angeles, and Williams two apiece.

M.A. Doubles Entry List Closes Tonight

Entries for the Middle Atlantic doubles championship close tonight at 6 o'clock with the Columbia Country Club telephone operator. Play starts at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon on the Columbia courts, with the finals to be played either Saturday or Sunday.

The field will be small, but select. It is doubtful if much in the way of out-of-town talent will compete, but all the well-known local combinations are in the running. The team of Tom Mangan and Bud Markey is likely to be seeded No. 1.

Gamblers Menace U. S. Open Course

Flushing, N. Y., June 20 (A.P.).—The Fresh Meadow Country Club, scene of the national open golf championship, which starts Thursday, was under police guard today, following threats of gamblers, who unsuccessfully sought to install betting machines at the course.

A few weeks ago a syndicate of gamblers made overtures to Milton Hertz, general chairman of the championship committee, regarding the installation of pari-mutuel machines near to the club, offering to pay the club a percentage of the play.

When they were refused, they are reported to have threatened to damage the greens. Later Mr. Hertz was told unless a certain sum was paid all the greens of the course would be demolished, he said.

The matter was reported to the police and guards were immediately put on the grounds.

Thorn, Woodmont, Pro, Ties in Middle Atlantic

Baltimore, Md., June 20.—John Flattery, of the Allview Country Club, and Arthur B. Thorn, Woodmont Club, Washington, with a best ball score of 71, captured the protournament on the Allview course at Ellicott City today.

Twelve teams participated in the event, sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association. Although good cards were turned in, rainy and drizzling weather prevented the players from showing their best. Par of 70 for the course has yet to be broken.

Second honors went to the Cunningham brothers—Walter and Gilbert—of Burning Tree, Washington, with 72.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight boxer, returned to this country today and picked Schmeling to defeat Sharkey tomorrow night if the Boston sailor weighs more than 200 pounds. If he weighs less Carnera believes Sharkey will win the title.

Corbett, Excited, Expects Fight to Be a "Corker"

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Gentleman Jim Corbett said tonight he was probably more worked up about the Sharkey-Schmeling fight than either of the principals.

"It's going to be a corker any way you look at it," he said. "Mrs. Corbett and I are going to be right in there by the ring when the show starts. I only hope we can see into it. The papers have been saying it was set pretty high for the ringside seats, but if necessary I can stand up in the big spots."

NEW TOWN OFFICERS NAMED FOR TAKOMA

Council Also Ratifies Cut in Tax Rate; Complaints on Refuse Heard.

Ratification of the reduced tax rate and appointment of town officers were among the items taken up at the first public meeting of the new mayor and town council of Takoma Park, Md., last night. The council ratified the budget of $45,500 and tax rate of 85 cents per $100 assessed value.

Appointments were announced as follows: Bryan Davis, to continue as clerk and treasurer for three months; E. E. Blodgett, building inspector and superintendent of the Firehouse and Community Hall; E. B. Fetty, electrical inspector; Frank Lane, C. Earl Thomas and Albert M. Thomas, full-time police officers; William F. Fischer, superintendent of public works; Oscar W. Scherger, fire marshal; Mayor Frederick Lewton, Councilmen M. F. Iverson, Peter Remsen, H. E. Rogers, R. G. Sherburne, Irvine H. Ware and John R. Adams, and W. H. Evans, A. B. Joseph, David Cruzem and Howard Drew as special officers.

A communication was received from W. Ernest Offutt, county sanitary inspector, stating that he and Dr. V. P. Ellicott, county health officer, had inspected the hog farm where town garbage is disposed of and coroborated complaints that it was a nuisance. The town was requested to take steps to clear up the health menace. Councilman Iverson said he expected to have the place cleared shortly.

The council accepted the resignation of J. Bond Smith and appointed Councilman R. G. Sherburn, as delegate to the Montgomery County Civic Federation. The council did not accept Mr. Smith's resignation as corporation counsel, since it was held that his term of office automatically expired at the time he suggested. The mayor was authorized to appoint a temporary legal counsel pending permanent action by the council.

It was voted to purchase three complete police outfits for the police force, to conform with the county uniform.

Police Doubt Tale Of Rum Hijacking

Because of discrepancies in the story told by Aloysius Mayhew, who says that he was robbed of twenty cases of liquor by hijackers Saturday night, Prince Georges County police yesterday said that they doubted the man's story.

Mayhew was found unconscious in his bed at his home in Chillum, Md., suffering from lacerations of the scalp. He was brought to Sibley Hospital by his uncle, William C. Shoemaker. At the hospital he said that he was bringing the liquor to Washington Saturday. Three men in an automobile forced him to the side of the road, he said, stopped his car and struck him in the head with a bottle. They then robbed him of $200 and the cargo of whisky, and he made his way home.

Policeman Claude Reese, who has been investigating the case, said that Mayhew had refused to tell him the license number of the car he was driving, or to name his assailants. The policeman also said that Mayhew made many conflicting statements.

PERJURY CHARGED TO BETHESDA MAN

Prisoner Is Accused of Changing Testimony in Liquor Case.

A. Everett Ingles, 49 years old, of Bethesda, Md., was cited for perjury yesterday by Judge Charles W. Woodward in Montgomery County Police Court at Rockville, Md. Ingles had changed his testimony from that given police several days ago when he was in the Georgetown Hospital following an assault upon him by two unknon men on Persimmon Tree road.

Ingles at that time told police he had purchased liquor from Richard V. Frizzell, of Glen Echo Heights, Md., and on the strength of his evidence a search warrant was sworn out and Frizzell's place raided by police headed by Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley and Sergt Leroy Rodgers. A quantity of alleged liquor was found and Frizzell charged with sale and possession of intoxicants. At the trial in police court Ingles denied he had purchased the liquor from Frizzell and the sale charge was dropped. Frizzell was fined $75 on the possession charge.

Ingles' three companions, Warner and Jeter Bell and Barnett Erwin, all of Bethesda, also at first denied the purchase but later told the court that they had given the money to Ingles and that he had purchased the liquor from Frizzell. The judge then directed that Ingles be held for the grand jury on a perjury charge.

Features designed to give the engine greater power, smoothness and flexibility at all speeds include rubber engine mounting, higher compression, larger intake manifold, increased valve lift, higher engine speed, a new carburetor and the new 38-pound crankshaft mounted in bearings. The transmission is of the four-speed type, with a "low-low" providing adequate power under all conditions.

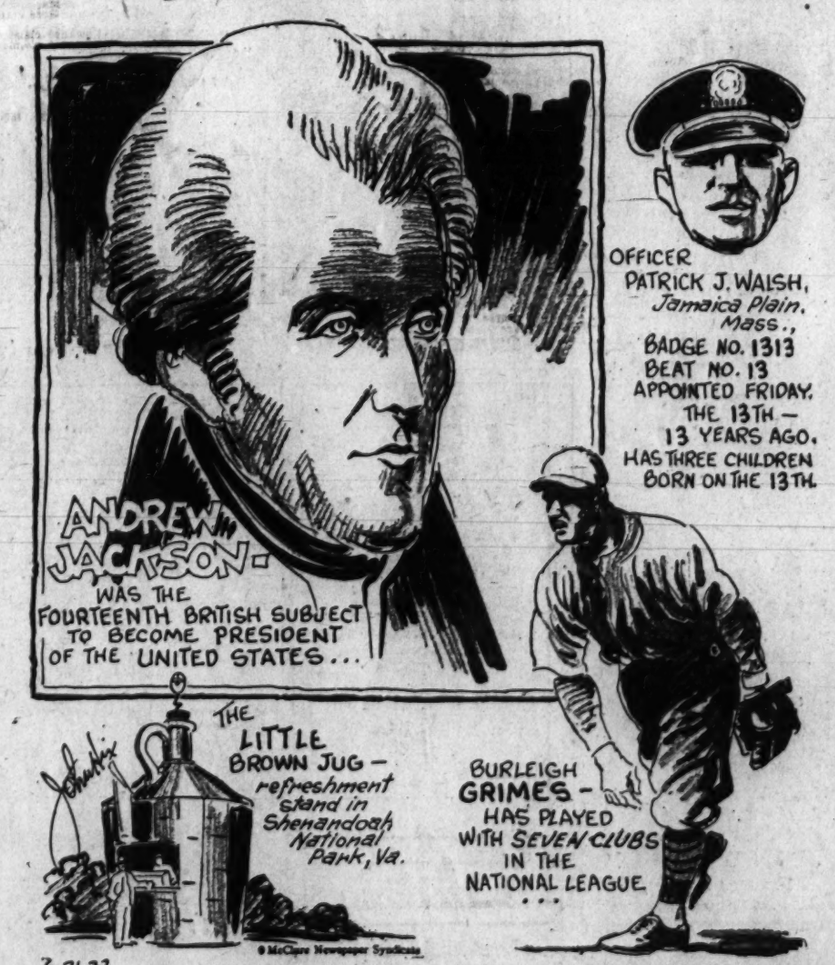
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



THE Nation's first leaders were born before the United States of America came into being, of course, and were subjects of Great Britain. It happens that the seven men who bore the title of President of the United States in Congress Assembled, under the old Articles of Confederation, and the first seven Presidents of the United States under the present Constitution, were at once British subjects.

Martin Van Buren, who was the eighth President of the United States under the Constitution of 1789, was the first President who was born an American subject. Added to the seven who served before him are those seven men who served before Washington as President of the United States in Congress Assembled—making Van Buren the fifteenth.

Andrew Jackson, who was born a British subject, is then the fourteenth President of the United States—including both those who presided

School Receives Japanese Token

John Eaton Presented Doll by Col. Shohei Washizu, Military Attache.

A beautiful Japanese doll was presented to the John Eaton School in Cleveland Park yesterday by Misses Mizumi and Mikiko Washizu, young daughters of Col. Shohei Washizu, military attache of the Japanese Embassy. The doll is about 3 feet tall and is dressed in Japanese costume.

In presenting the gift, the father expressed deep appreciation to the principal, teachers and pupils of the school for the help given the two Japanese children, who are students in the school. It was presented also with the hope of promoting better understanding between the children of Japan and the United States.

The two children were unable to speak English when they entered the school last September. Now they speak the language fluently and stand well in their classes. They are returning to their native country because their father has been transferred to duty there.

Vast Rotary Host Gathers in Seattle

3,500 Clubs Represented at Twenty-third International Convention.

Seattle, June 30 (A.P.).—United under the creed of "Service Above Self," thousands of business and professional men from 3,500 Rotary clubs throughout the world registered here today for the twenty-third annual convention of Rotary International.

They poured in by train and by boat, by car and airplane, from New Zealand, Canada, Australia, Africa, India, Malaya, South America, Europe and the United States for a meeting undreamed of by Paul P. Harris when, as a young Chicago lawyer, he founded Rotary in 1905. The simple luncheon meeting of a few friends, each representing some business or profession, has grown to a gigantic chain of clubs, with 155,000 members.

Seven directors will be elected, five from the United States and one each from Canada and Great Britain. One of the directors will be the new president. The 1933 convention will be held in Boston.

C. & O. INCOME CUT $2,804,079 LOWER

May Earnings, $7,588,624; Five Months' Loss Is $9,315,304.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Gross revenues of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. in May totaled $7,588,624, the company's statement of operations filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission reveals. This sum represents a decline of $2,804,079 under May of last year.

Operating expenses of the road totaled $4,302,815, a decline of $1,867,673, as compared with the month a year ago, while net railway operating income was $2,263,072, a recession of $1,020,846 under May, 1931.

Net income for May after all charges, including sinking fund appropriation, amounted to $1,585,507, or $950,401 under the month last year. The operating ratio is 56.7 per cent, contrasted with 59.4 for May, 1931.

Five Months' Income.

For the five months ended May 31, 1932, the company shows gross revenues of $39,198,696, or $9,315,304 less than those for the corresponding period last year. Operating expenses were $23,510,160, or $8,389,124 lower. Net railway operating income totaled $11,529,844 for this period, a decline of $832,778.

Net income after all charges, including sinking-fund appropriation, is $7,750,256, or $1,302,729 less, compared with the same period in 1931. Operating ratio for the period is 60 per cent, a recession of 5.8 per cent from last year's period of comparison.

Store Sales Survey.

Department stores of the country are suffering a substantial loss in their sales volume, due to a new type of variety chain competition, it was reported yesterday, as a result of a survey, completed recently by Chain Store Research Bureau.

The survey showed that while department stores of the country for the first five months of 1932 reported a 22 per cent decline of sales in dollar volume, the decline in the variety field was but 9.4 per cent, due to a decided tendency on the part of the variety chains to increase their price range to include merchandise selling up to $5.

Because of this policy, variety chains showed considerable increase in sales of cottons, silk and wool, dress goods, hosiery, millinery, women's dresses, jewelry, knit underwear and draperies, indicating an important change in textile distribution in the country. These departments are ones that have suffered the greatest loss in the case of the department stores.

Receiver Asked For Algoma Steel

Suit by Bank Urges Sale or Foreclosure of $30,000,000 Mortgage.

Toronto, Ontario, June 20 (A.P.).—Appointment of a receiver and manager of the property and assets of the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ltd., was asked today by the Trust & Guaranty Co.

The petitioner is trustee of the Algoma company and the Lake Superior Corporation, a New Jersey corporation which controls the Algoma concern. The latter was incorporated in 1912 under Ontario laws and acquired from the Lake Superior Corporation the plants of the Lake Superior Iron & Steel Co., Ltd., Algoma Steel Co., Ltd., Lake Superior Power Co., Ltd., and the entire capital stock of the Lake Superior Coal Co. The latter had taken over the Dixie Pocahontas Fuel Co., near Welch, W. Va.

Foreclosure or sale of the $30,000,000 mortgage made in 1912, in which the United States Mortgage & Trust Co. is mortagee, is asked. In a second suit the Trust & Guarantee Co. asks for administration by the court of a $5,800,000 mortgage in which the United States Mortgage & Trust Co. is mortagee.

GRAIN PRICES HIGHER ON HARVEST STORMS

Black Rust Menace Assists Advance; Corn and Oats Record Gains.

Chicago, June 20 (A.P.).—Unfavorable harvest conditions for domestic winter wheat Southwest did much to bring about higher prices for all cereals today.

Increased apprehension as to black rust in spring wheat Northwest had a further bullish effect. There was also considerable evening-up of accounts to prepare for the new Federal tax which goes in operation tomorrow, 5 cents per $100 on all grain futures dealings compared with 1 cent heretofore.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅞ to 1½ cents above Saturday's finish, corn ⅝ to 1 cent advanced, oats ¼ to ½ cent up, and provisions at a rise of 2 to 12 cents.

An unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool added to bullish sentiment regarding wheat. The Liverpool upturn was ascribed to a decrease of 200,000 bushels in stocks of wheat at Liverpool and to the fact that Liverpool arrivals of wheat the last week were 800,000 bushels under those of the week previous.

Anxiety about adverse harvest conditions in Kansas and neighboring States, however, provided the chief immediate stimulus to wheat buyers

4-Inch Rain in Kansas.

Reports at hand showed that 4 inches or more of rain had fallen over the week-end at various places in Kansas, where recent high temperatures had caused wheat to ripen rapidly, and that heavy damage to crops had resulted in some localities. Elsewhere, it was believed that harvest operations would be retarded several days at least.

On the other hand, receipts of new wheat showed decided enlargement, a total of 1,220 carloads at nine Southwest markets being announced.

A decrease of 1,396,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total today was accompanied by assertions from some trade authorities that the decrease would be the last to be witnessed for a long while. Export business remained meager, with 500,000 bushels moving and that mostly Canadian.

Corn and oats borrowed strength from wheat. Talk was heard that rainy weather would delay cultivation of corn.

Bancamerica-Blair Capital Stock Cut

$14,710,120 in Shares Is Reduced by Vote to $1,470,000.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Stockholders of Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, controlled by Transamerica Corporation, voted today to reduce the capital stock to $1,470,000 from $14,710,120.

The change does not affect the intrinsic value of the shares, the company stated, but represents the reverse of a stock split-up. Under the plan, stockholders will receive one new share of stock for each ten now held.

Bancamerica-Blair Corporation was the investment banking affiliate of the Bank of America, New York, formerly controlled by Transamerica, but later merged with the National City Bank. This transaction prompted A. P. Giannini, San Francisco banker, to wage his successful fight against Elisha Walker, New York banker, to regain control of Transamerica.

Minnesota Steel Operating Changed

U. S. Corporation Takes Charge of Subsidiary in Economy Move.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—Further efforts at consolidation of manufacturing facilities was seen today in the announcement that the United States Steel Corporation now is operating the Minnesota Steel Co., a subsidiary at Duluth, under lease by the American Steel and Wire Co., a Steel Corporation subsidiary of the corporation.

According to the new arrangement, it was said, the Minnesota Steel Co. is to retain its corporate entity, but only as a holding company.

In connection with the economy plans of the steel corporation, the Gary plant of the National Tube Co. has been closed temporarily and orders which would ordinarily go to the Indiana concern are now being filled at the tube company's Loraine, Ohio, plant.

Petition for Holiday.

New York, June 20 (A.P.).—A petition is being circulated on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange calling for a holiday on Saturday, July 2.

The Rubber Exchange of New York will be closed on Saturdays during July and August and on September 3, preceding Labor Day.

Potential Bond Offerings Large.

New York, June 20.—Investment circles hear that several corporations which have extensive bank loans are not especially anxious to continue these indefinitely and will seek to retire them through the sale of bonds just as soon as the market looks a little better.

Bumping Along the Bottom.

While the German government 5½s and 7s, together with both Austrian 7s, were rather heavily traded at gains of from 1 to 3½ points, and a number of low-priced rails advanced moderately, the averages for the utilities and industrials were slightly under their Saturday's figures.

The rails were aided by the rather nebulous reports that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be authorized to advance funds to various carriers for the purchase of the latter's bonds at the present low market values.

The majority of the United States Government obligations kept their heads above the water and the Treasuries were fairly active.

After early softness British 5½s stepped back into the par class with a net gain of a point on the day. French bonds steadied and loans of Colombia, Brazil and various German corporate groups improved.

13-YEAR-OLD BOY SHOT DURING SWIM; ANOTHER, 14, HELD

School Youth Has 100-to-1 Chance to Survive His Wound.

FIRED AT DELIBERATELY, HE STATES AT HOSPITAL

Police Confused by Varied Stories Told Them by Those Involved.

On a swimming party in the Eastern Branch near Benning road yesterday, Joseph McCrone, 13-year-old schoolboy, of 1610 Trinidad avenue northeast, was critically and probably fatally wounded when he was struck by a bullet fired by another boy.

Varied stories told by companions of the two boys confused police as to the motive for the shooting. After the police had virtually decided that it was accidental, the statement of a boy who was with McCrone indicated it might have been deliberate, they said.

The shot was fired by Charles E. Tebbes, 14-year-old student at Stuart Junior High School. He admitted this when he was arrested by Policemen C. L. Hayden and Sheridan Jones, of the Ninth Precinct. He was removed to the Receiving Home and held for investigation.

Emergency Operation Performed.

The wounded boy was removed to Casualty Hospital, where an emergency operation was performed in an effort to save his life. In spite of the operation, physicians said that he had only a 100-to-1 chance to recover.

According to Bruce Haige, 13, of 1321 Childress street northeast, who was with McCrone, three boys, who had been swimming near them in the Eastern Branch, began shooting at them. They ducked two shots, he told police, and heard the bullets whiz above them.

Then, he said, the boy whom he identified as Tebbes, took the rifle, saying, "give me the gun, I can hit them." He fired one shot, Haige said. It struck McCrone, who ran a few steps and fell.

Then Haige said he and two other boys took the wounded boy to watchman's shack quite a distance away. The watchman called police, who removed him to the hospital.

Decided to Play "Hookey."

Tebbes, with two other boys, both students at Stuart Junior High School, Walter Brady, of 528 Fourth street northeast, and Louis Dorman, of 111 Fifth street southeast, met in Stanton Park yesterday morning and decided to play "hookey."

They went to Tebbes' home and got his rifle and then proceeded to the Eastern Branch. A short distance from them, McCrone and Haige were swimming.

Tiring of the water, Tebbes and his companions began shooting at marks with the rifle. Tebbes was shooting at an object floating in the river and his bullet glanced off the surface and struck McCrone in the stomach.

Grabbed Clothes and Fled.

McCrone fell, and Tebbes exclaimed, "I've shot that boy."

The three then grabbed their clothes, which were on the river bank, and fled.

According to police, McCrone, in a statement made at the hospital, said he had been shot deliberately by a boy he did not know.

The policeman went to the scene and found the gun in a bush. They also found a magazine cover on a tree which had been used as a target. Written on it was Tebbes' name and grade in school. His arrest followed.

While en route to Washington from Richmond, Va., Monday night, Albert Burak, 35 years old, of 1426 M street northwest, accidentally swallowed some poison tablets. He died in Mount Alto Hospital Sunday night.

Avenue Merchant Is Robbed by Trio

Woman Helps Two Men Bind and Lock Up Storekeeper.

Timing their activities a few minutes before Government employes left the Interstate Commerce Building across the street, three shabbily dressed bandits, one of them a woman, held up Emanuel Michelson at the point of a pistol yesterday, and, tying him up, proceeded to ransack his clothing store at 1747 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The merchant was displaying his wares to a man and woman when a third person entered with a gun in his hand and forced the storekeeper into the rear of the store. The man who came in with the woman then proceeded to bind and gag the merchant with a neck shawl and rope.

The storekeeper loosened his bonds and called the proprietor of the store at 1745 Pennsylvania avenue, who re the bandits had locked him in. Tally-leased him from the rear room, where ing his losses, Mr. Michelson discovered that the trio had robbed him of $10 he was carrying and had taken about $10 from the cash register. They overlooked $60.

TAXIS ASK FIREPLUG SPACE FOR PARKING

Cab Association Head Says Proposal Would Reduce Cruising by Hackers.

More space for hack stands in the downtown area through the utilization of dead curb space adjacent to fire hydrants was advocated last night in a statement of Harry C. Davis, president of the Independent Taxi Owners' Association.

He said Washington taxicabs, numbering more than those in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit and San Francisco combined, are forced to cruise nearly 250,000 miles a day unprofitably because of inadequate parking facilities.

"Adequate parking facilities at strategic fire-plug locations," he said, "should make the operation of cabs more economical and relieve traffic congestion and taxicab cruising."

"Detroit, with only 900 cabs, enacted the fire-plug regulation for taxicabs to eliminate cruising and congestion.

"There are 1,166 street car stops which prohibit the parking of 900 private autos, there are 277 safety zones and loading platforms which further prohibit the parking of 1,100 autos, and in addition there are a great number of bus stops.

"The cab industry is asking approximately 79 fire plugs for parking accommodations, which space is now "dead space" and not being utilized by motorists.

"Chief Engineer George Watson of the Fire Department thinks there might be interference. If the suggestion can be put into effect without decreasing the efficiency of the Fire Department it would be of material assistance in improving traffic conditions."

Union Theft Trial Under Way Here

Charged with embezzling $32,000 of the funds of the International Union of Operating Engineers, Dave Evans, of Chicago, former secretary-treasurer of that firm, yesterday went on trial before Justice James M. Proctor in District Supreme Court.

The indictment against Evans alleges that he misappropriated the funds of the union between September, 1929, and March, 1931. He was arrested in Chicago last July and indicted here the following month. Illness of an important defense witness caused numerous postponements of the trial.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and a corps of accountants from the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice are handling the prosecution, while Attorneys P. H. Marshall and Stedman & Lewis, the latter two of Chicago, are defending Evans.

Compensation Act Pay Ruled in Fatal Sunstroke

A worker who is required to do heavy manual labor in a hot sun is entitled to the protection of the workmen's compensation act, if he suffers a sunstroke and dies, the Court of Appeals yesterday ruled in awarding Mrs. Emma Burris, whose husband died of a sunstroke last summer, the benefits that would have gone to her if he had received fatal injuries in a more direct link with his work.

The Compensation Commission had held that Mr. Burris had not died as the result of his employment, and had denied the widow compensation. The higher court instructed the District Supreme Court to issue a mandatory injunction directing the commission to pay Mr. Burris' widow the benefits due him.

Man Flees With Shoes; 30 Days Ends the Chase

A new, shiny pair of shoes performed admirably for James Jones for five blocks yesterday and then betrayed him to the law, following close behind.

For five blocks Jones outdistanced a police automobile and then capitulated to superior authority only when he threw a protesting shoe.

Jones, colored, visited a store at 2210 Georgia avenue and fled with a pair of shoes on his feet, for which he had neglected to pay Morris Edelman, the proprietor. Even in the new shoes, Jones broke the all-time Georgia avenue sprint record. In Police Court he was given 30 days for the theft of the shoes.

Jealousy Called Shooting Motive

Jealousy probably was the motive for the shooting Saturday night of a young Washington couple who were wounded near their parked car on the Sargent road just over the District line, Prince Georges County, police said yesterday.

The theory was first advanced that Wesley Owens, 18, of 58 U street northwest, and Sue Whittington, 16, of 330 Bryant street northeast, were shot by a nervous bandit in a hold-up attempt. After talking with the wounded pair, police said they abandoned the holdup theory for that of jealousy. Owens said he and the girl were sitting in their car when another machine drove up beside them. An occupant ordered them to get out. There was a pistol shot, and the other car drove off. Owens drove into Washington until he met a policeman who took him to Sibley Hospital.

Owens, who was shot through the neck, was reported at the hospital to be in a satisfactory condition. The same bullet passed through his body and struck the girl in the shoulder, but she was allowed to go home Saturday, after treatment.

Policeman Is Hurt in Fall Over Recovered Rowboat

A rowboat stolen from a back porch of a house more than two months ago was discovered yesterday in the basement of another house.

The boat, about eight feet long, was taken from the porch of the home of John Whitcomb, of 3818 Albemarle street, while Whitcomb was engrossed in a newspaper in a room opening off from the porch. Acting on a tip received yesterday, Precinct Detective E. D. Lambert and Private H. R. Osborne, of the Eighth Precinct, went to the home of Thomas Lucas, 16, of 4655 Wisconsin avenue, and found the boat in the basement.

Lucas is being held for investigation and was sent to the receiving home. The boat was put on the running board of a car and taken to the precinct station and placed on the floor near the door.

Lieut. McGill Grove, in command of the precinct, last night walked in the door of the station house and, not noticing the boat stumbled over it. He was treated in the squad room for lacerations to both legs and the boat was promptly removed to another place.

CREDIT MEN RESCUE FROZEN PROSPERITY IN SKIT ON POTOMAC

IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN STORES' ACCOUNTS

2,000 Expected at Sessions Today; Business Leaders Scheduled to Speak.

Frozen assets thawed out long enough to impart a spirit of prosperity to the National Retail Credit Association as it started its twentieth annual convention last night with a Mardi Gras aboard the City of Washington.

2,000 Delegates Expected.

About 2,000 delegates are expected to attend the sessions of the convention at the Mayflower Hotel.

Officials of the organization maintain that credit in retail markets presents a bright picture in comparison with that in other business. This they attribute to the fact that credit managers have adapted themselves to the present emergency and have become increasingly efficient.

Collection percentages have been kept higher and return merchandise percentages have been kept lower due to efficient management and study of the wants and practices of the buyer, they assert.

Customers, the credit men say, are meeting their obligations in an orderly manner and are making new purchases on charge and installment accounts in approximately the same proportion to cash sales as has been the case in the past.

Entertained at Luncheon.

A special delegation of the officers of the association headed by Frank Batty, president, placed a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier yesterday morning. The Associated Credit Men of Washington entertained delegates at a luncheon following the visit to Arlington.

Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, will welcome the convention at the official opening this morning Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce; David J. Woodlock, of St Louis, secretary-treasurer of the association; W. W. Everett, vice president of Woodward & Lothrop; Henry J Allen, assistant to the president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and John D. Reilly, vice president of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., will address the organization.

The committee which arranged the Mardi Gras last night included Abe Coonin, chairman; Mark Lansburgh, Harold Zirkin, Mrs. Martha Kelly, Mrs. Jesse Rodgers, William Wren and J. Henkle.

GIRL CRASH VICTIM ON WAY TO WEDDING

Miss Beverly O'Brien and Bert Bagranoff Planned Marriage in St. Louis.

The automobile trip in which Miss Beverly O'Brien, 23-year-old Washington singer, was killed and her fiance, Bert Bagranoff, 25, George Washington University football player, was seriously injured, was to have been their wedding trip, according to Miss Josephine Noel, 1403 New Hampshire avenue, a friend of the couple.

Miss Noel said yesterday the couple were en route to St. Louis, where Bagranoff's parents live. His father, a minister, was to have performed the marriage ceremony. The couple then planned to visit Miss O'Brien's parents in Highmore, S. Dak.

Kenneth Broderick, also of Washington, was driving the vehicle when it crashed head on into a machine driven by Thomas O'Connor, of Indianapolis. Blood tests revealed that O'Connor was intoxicated, according to Deputy E. R. Wilson. He was arrested and held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Both Bagranoff, who is an employe of the American Automobile Association, and Miss O'Brien were well known in local musical circles. They both sang in the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "The Gondoliers," which was presented at the Belasco Theater last spring by the Washington Civic Opera Company. Miss O'Brien was the only Washington contralto to win a place in the last Atwater Kent radio audition contest. She presented a musical concert before the Arts Club less than two months ago. She made her home with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilkie, 1633 Franklin street northeast.

Bagranoff lives at the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity House, 1714 Rhode Island avenue northwest. He was a member of the George Washington University Glee Club.

Man Held at Stop Sign Faces Liquor Charges

After stopping a man for allegedly going through a stop sign, H. G Bauer, of the Second Precinct Special Squad, yesterday charged him with transporting and possessing liquor in addition.

Bauer said Eugene Jackson, 23 years old, colored, of 1901 Vermont avenue northwest, violated the "stop" order when he turned out of Pierce street northwest into New Jersey avenue. When the policeman stopped Jackson and asked for his driver's permit, he declares he found 24 half-gallons of liquor in the rear of the car.

The Rev. Paul G. Hutton, of the Viatorian Seminary, of 625 Hamlin street northeast, said that the window in his room had been forced open, and several small articles stolen. Police arrested Wash some time after the robbery. The robe he wore was reported missing by the priest.

Match and Gasoline Tank Burn Motorist Seriously

Joseph Brooks, 24 years old, of 2809 Fifteenth street northwest, was seriously burned about the face and hands when he struck a match last night to see if the vacuum tank on his car was filled with gasoline.

When his car ran out of gas at Sixteenth and L streets Brooks went to the Stoneleigh Gas Station for a can of gasoline, and upon returning started filling his vacuum tank. When he thought it was nearly full he lit a match and the explosion occurred, spraying the upper part of his body with flames.

He was removed to the Emergency Hospital and a local alarm of fire was sent to the nearest engine house to extinguish the fire in the car. Brooks' condition is serious.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN 105 AT LANGLEY SCHOOL

Class Hears Lyle W. Ashby, of N. E. A., Explain Value of Education.

An address by Lyle W. Ashby, assistant director of publications, National Education Association, on "The Values of an Education," featured the promotion exercises last night of Langley Junior High School.

Diplomas, entitling the recipients to enter high school, were received by 105 students. All their names and the high schools to which they are going appeared in The Sunday Post.

The values of an education were defined by Mr. Ashby as follows: It helps one to know what life is all about; it makes the literary scientific inheritances of the race available; it gives one a learning attitude; it helps to bring out the best in one, and it enables the individual to advance in his professional or business life farther and faster than would otherwise be possible.

"Education," he told the class, "is the process of developing the best that is within you—the strongest muscle, the keenest mind, the purest spirit. It is not a stuffing process; it is a bursting process, something within you pushing out. Within yourself is the power to secure the fruits of education. Cultivate that power in the years that lie immediately ahead of you and the best things of life will be yours."

The Rev. W. F. Atkinson, minister of the Lincoln Road Methodist Episcopal Church, pronounced the invocation; an address of welcome was given by Richard P. Hilder, president of the class, and the valedictory was given by Betty Ann Fast. Diplomas were presented by Jere J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs.

Armory Guard Hits Man, 76, With Club

Victim, in Serious Condition, Called Intruder in Building.

George Smyrson, 76 years old, of 1434 N street northwest, received a possibly fractured skull and lacerations of the head when he was struck with a guard stick by Charles E. Clark, 20 years old, of 2203 Channing street northeast.

Clark, who is a civilian guard at the Armory, told police that the older man refused to give any reason for trying to enter the building and insisted on pushing past him. During the scuffle, Clark said he was forced to use his stick. He is being held in custody of Lieut. Col. Preston G. Nevitt, officer of the day at the Armory.

Two Men Held and Auto And Alleged Rum Taken

The actions of two men in an automobile at Fifth and Farragut streets northwest aroused the suspicions of police last night, and upon investigating they discovered 116 quarts of alleged whisky in the car. The men were arrested and the car and whisky confiscated.

Harris Moody, 32, of Leonardtown, Md., and Ermon Henson, 30, of Indianhead, Md., were charged at the Sixth Precinct with illegal possession. They were arrested by Sergt. A. W. Guyer and Private L. A. Crabbin.

FIREMAN KILLS SELF WITH PISTOL; 'TIRED OF LIFE,' HE WRITES

WEARINESS INDICATED IN THREE SUICIDE NOTES

A fellow fireman who called to see why he had not reported for work yesterday afternoon found Pvt. Arthur J. Stritch, 26 years old, dying on the bathroom floor of his apartment at 1712 Summit place northwest. There was a bullet wound in his temple. Three notes were found in his apartment indicating his weariness of life in general.

The young fireman died at Emergency Hospital within an hour after he was taken there by members of the fire rescue squad, which was called by Pvt. R. E. Dodson, of No. 21 Engine Co., and Joseph G. Ferrier, 22 years old, Stritch's roommate.

Radio Turned on Full.

A radio, turned to full amplification, was turned on in the living room of the apartment, apparently to deaden the sound of the .32 caliber pistol. The gun victim was found about 6:15 p. m. He was seen two hours earlier by the janitor and his wife, when Stritch went to the basement to get a suitcase from a locker.

Stritch was attached to No. 11 Truck Co., but yesterday was assigned to No. 21 truck. When he did not appear for duty, Pvt. Dodson was sent to his house. Dodson met Ferrier as he was just entering the door. Together, they managed to push the bathroom door open far enough to see Stritch's body stretched on the flood and a pool of blood. Members of the fire rescue squad forced their way in through a window and hurried him to the hospital.

Stritch had worked in the Washington fire department for two years. Before coming here he was a fireman in Baltimore. His mother, Mrs. Charles F. Ruth, lives at 406 North Patterson Park avenue, Baltimore. She was recently remarried.

Left Letter to Mother.

A letter to her, apparently containing money, was left sealed on a table. "Dear Dan:" the letter to Ferrier read. "Will you see that my mother gets the letter I wrote her and see that the furniture company gets their radio and dresser back. Goodby, Dan. I hope you reach the thirty-second degree and perfect your uppercut. So long, Dan."

The other note was addressed to Eddie Blair, of Hyattsville. "Dear Eddie:" it read. "So long, old pal. I admit I'm a coward but I'm tired of life. Send your future payments to my mother. We had some great times together, didn't we, old pal? Try not to hate me too much. Give my goodbyes to your parents and Rae. So long, old pal."
